Sheppard's Wife Attending Retrial

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Samuel H. Sheppard's German-born second wife attended the fifth day of his murder retrial today as selection of a jury neared completion.

Both state and defense used the last of the four peremptory challenges each had, and at the midmorning recess seven men and four women were seated in the jury box with one chair yet to be filled.

Ariane Tebbenjohanns Sheppard was in Germany when her husband's trial in the 12-year-old slaying of his first wife, Marilyn, opened Monday.

She flew back to Cleveland Thursday night, and, in answer to reporters' queries, denied her absence at the trial's start implied any marital estrangement.

"People were expecting a lot of things," she said. "There was no truth in that. People have been waiting for us to divorce ever since we were married."

The 42-year-old Sheppard embraced his wife, thrust a lavender orchid into her hand and told newsmen he had "missed her terribly."

"Baby, you can't say anything about the cause," Sheppard cautioned his wife.

New Dangers Seen in Test By Red China

Missile Launch Not Confirmed By AEC as Yet

TOKYO (AP) — Red China underlined its rejection of new efforts to ban the spread of nuclear weapons and fresh allied peace moves in Viet Nam by claiming to have exploded a nuclear warhead carried by a guided missile Thursday. It said the achievement should be "a great encouragement" to Hanoi.

The blast—the fourth Chinese nuclear test since Oct. 16, 1964 took place two days after President Johnson and leaders of six other allied countries made new Viet Nam peace commitments in Manila and amid some signs of U.S.-Soviet progress toward a treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons.

The Chinese test came as Johnson, on his first overseas trip as President, was in Thailand, whose northernmost border is only about 100 miles from Red China. Its timing suggested it was designed to take Asian eyes away from the President's trip and the aftermath of the Manila conference.

The announcement, made early today by Peking's New China News Agency, did not report how far the missile traveled, where the test was staged or the size of the warhead.

But the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said it had detected an explosion in the general area of the Lop Nor testing site in Singkiang Province. It said it was in the low to low-intermediate range — 20,000 tons to 200,000-to-1,000,000 tons. The Hiroshima bomb was about 20,000 tons.

The AEC said it had no evidence to confirm or deny the Chinese claim of using a missile to deliver the nuclear warhead. Other U.S. officials noted that Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara predicted last year that Peking might have nuclear strike capability of 50-700 miles by early 1967.

A missile capable of delivering a nuclear warhead that distance could pose a threat to Nationalist-held Formosa, Thailand or Okinawa, the big U.S. military fortress 400 miles off the China Coast.

It also would bring neighboring India, bested by China in a border war four years ago, and the Soviet Union, with which China's relations grow steadily worse, under a nuclear gun from next door.

Saigon Ammo Dump Explodes

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two American servicemen were reported killed and 10 wounded tonight when a U.S. Army ammunition dump exploded in a huge ball of fire 12 miles north of Saigon.

First reports had said the blaze apparently inflicted only slight casualties, but Associated Press correspondent John Lengle reported from the scene that American authorities there reported a heavy casualty toll.

The blast laid waste the surrounding jungle and broke windows in Saigon.

Large numbers of American troops are based in the Long Binh area, which is a supply area for the U.S. 1st and 25th divisions. A large hospital also is in the area.

A U.S. military spokesman said the explosion occurred 15 miles north of Saigon, much farther away than was thought after the initial force of the explosion.

The spokesman said the first explosion was followed by a series of smaller ones.

Johnson Sees Eventual Peace For All Asia

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand's king and queen and thousands of its people gave President and Mrs. Johnson a polite and colorful but never boisterous welcome today.

The President in a speech of greeting predicted peace would someday come to all Asia.

Solid ranks of smiling Thais, most of them schoolchildren in blue and white uniforms, waved small American and Thai flags as the President and King Bhumibol Adulyadej rode slowly down a broad boulevard.

Because it was a rigidly ceremonial occasion rather than one of the President's "meet the people's" excursions, there were no stops along the route of the motorcade for the President to shake the Thai hands.

Mrs. Johnson rode with Bhumibol's beautiful young wife, Queen Sirikit, in a high yellow Rolls Royce with silk pillows.

The President and his wife came by helicopter to the royal plaza near the king's sprawling palace compound after an overnight seaside rest at Bang Sen, 68 miles to the southeast. Their arrival launched two crowded days of ceremonies and other activities.

The jazz-loving, Massachusetts-born king and his dainty queen greeted the Johnsons at the door of the helicopter and officially welcomed them to this Southeast Asian ally country three-fourths the size of Texas.

Cannon boomed and four Thai air force jets roared overhead as the President and the king stood at attention for their national anthems, then reviewed an honor guard. After the Johnsons met an assemblage of Thai dignitaries and the diplomatic corps, the long motorcade moved slowly off to the Municipal Pavilion where Lord Mayor Channan Yuvaboon welcomed the presidential couple to Bangkok and gave the President the gold key to the city.

Speaking at the Municipal Pavilion, Johnson said he believes the United States, Thailand and the other five allies in the Viet Nam war succeeded at their Manila conference "but that is a judgment that will be best made by history." He reminded his listeners that the Pacific waters that wash their shores and those of the other allies in the war "also touch Hanoi and mainland China."

Ohio Realty Tax Is Low, Krabach Says

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — State Finance Director Richard Krabach contended here Thursday night that Ohio has the lowest real estate tax per dollar of real value of any major state in the nation.

Krabach, responding to criticism Gov. James A. Rhodes' administration has been receiving over the amount of state assistance to the public schools, said he felt good results have been achieved.

Addressing a meeting of the Ohio School Boards Association's Southeast Region, the state official cited what he called a public confidence gap in public education.

He said a higher percentage of local school levies are failing now than at any time since the early 1900s.

Educators themselves may be partly at fault, Krabach said, in failing to take a positive approach in their public relations when seeking passage of school issues. You don't sell a product by saying it costs too much or downgrading it, he said.

Halloween Parade Monday Night

Circleville will observe Halloween Monday in the traditional manner.

The Circleville Junior Chamber of Commerce, assisted by the Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce, will sponsor their annual Halloween Parade. Spooks, goblins and other creatures from the unknown will form up at 7 p. m. on W. Franklin St. next to the Courthouse.

William Stout, parade chairman, said the procession will move out sharply at 7:30 p. m. Marching bands from Circleville and Logan Elm High Schools will participate.

The customary parade has become a popular event here, with both the sheriff and police departments lending assistance.

STOUT said the parade will move west on Franklin St. to Scioto St., north on Scioto to Main St., east on Main to Court St. and south on Court to the building formerly occupied by Clifton Motors.

Judging of the various costumes and assorted entries will be conducted at the Clifton building. Refreshments will be served to participants, compliments of Blue Ribbon Dairy and Lindsey Bakery.

Northwest Ohio Water Plan Pushed

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The Northwest Ohio Water Development Plan, aimed at assuring 27 northwestern Ohio counties enough water for the next 40 years, is expected to be ready in about two months, it was reported here today.

Robert M. Tippet, of Columbus, an associate of Burgess-Niple, Consulting Engineers, spoke at one of the closing sessions of the Ohio section of the American Water Works Association.

Tippet heads an engineering team hired by the state to make the study, which covers an area with a 6 million population and some 9,100 square miles, 22 percent of Ohio's area. It includes rivers and streams west of Cleveland that drain into Lake Erie and affects 140 cities and communities.

The plan will hinge on construction of a series of upland reservoirs. These are not on streams or rivers. They would be built on high ground and water pumped into them from nearby streams and rivers during periods of heavy rainfall, Tippet said.

The plan will include assurance of an adequate public water supply, industrial water supply, agricultural water supply, flood control, recreation areas and pollution control.

The engineers predict the population of the area will double in the next 40 years and that water consumption will triple in that same length of time.

Actor Sanders Files Bankruptcy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor George Sanders has filed a bankruptcy petition listing nearly $1 million in liabilities. He says he was the victim of an "international swindle."

Sanders said in Los Angeles Thursday he lost his money as a shareholder in an investment company building food-processing factories in Scotland. He said he signed bank guarantees for $1.25 million.

Sanders, 60, listed assets of $37,857 and said he paid $360,000 into the defunct company.

Soviet Fires Mighty Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union set off Thursday the biggest underground nuclear blast ever recorded, American officials reported.

The Atomic Energy Commission said Thursday night seismic signals showed a detonation in the intermediate- to high-yield range — meaning it approached the equivalent of a million tons of TNT.

Intermediate yield in the AEC's terminology covers the range from 200,000 to a million tons. High is above a million.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Authorities withheld an official ruling in the death of Edward Kathman, 28, who was found shot to death Thursday in his home.

His wife, Harriet, 28, was questioned. The shooting resulted from a domestic quarrel, police said.

Oriskany Docks at Base With Disaster Victims

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — The flame-scorched aircraft carrier Oriskany, looking like the victim of a kamikaze attack, docked in the Philippines today to say goodbye to 43 fallen shipmates and to begin what was described as a "tremendous job" of repair.

The 45,000-ton carrier steamed about 650 miles from her station in the Gulf of Tonkin where two days ago she was racked by a white-hot magnesium-fed blaze.

Within two hours after the Oriskany tied up at the U.S. Naval Base on Subic Bay, the flag-draped remains of 35 officers and eight enlisted men were carried from the ship to a plane which flew them to Clark Air Force Base north of Manila on the first leg of their journey home.

Six chaplains uttered quiet prayers and a bugler sounded taps as the 3,400-man ship's company stood at attention.

As the rites were held, formal Navy investigation of the disaster was under way and hard-hatted ship repair workers were swarming over the smoke-blackened, fire-twisted hangar deck where the blaze centered.

About half of the 35 officers killed were pilots, including the senior flying officer, Cmdr. Rodney Carter of Porterville, Calif.

Of the eight enlisted men killed, five were journalists.

Three other men were seriously injured and 35 others received lesser injuries.

New Boots, Vaccine Claimed for USSR

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow radio reported today that Russians have invented boots for walking on water and developed a completely effective vaccine against measles.

The boots, credited to a Soviet engineer, resemble "miniature, self-closing umbrellas" that "open up when you step on a liquid surface and close when the foot is lifted," the broadcast said.

U.N. Is Blocked By South Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Many UN diplomats expressed doubt today that the world organization could carry out the General Assembly's decision to wrest South-West Africa from a defiant South African government.

The 121-nation assembly voted 114-2 Thursday night, with 3 abstentions, to end South Africa's old League of Nations mandate over the vast territory on her northwest border and bring it under U.N. trusteeship.

The resolution authored by 54 Asian and African nations was the most drastic action the U.N. has ever embarked upon to try to compel South Africa to yield the territory. But the South African government has served notice it will use "whatever means necessary" to block any attempt to take over the mandate.

'Some Progress' In Paper Strike

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — No meetings are planned today between negotiators in a strike which has shut down both the Toledo Blade and the Toledo Morning Times since Tuesday.

The Blade Co., which published both of Toledo's daily newspapers, reported "some progress" after a pension discussion Thursday night with the Toledo Council of Newspaper Unions, representing all nine unions involved in the dispute.

"It appears that the meeting may have cleared the air a bit," said Wayne Current, company general manager. He said pension provisions are a factor in contract talks with all nine unions.

Erhard Remains as Head Of Minority Government

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's new minority government suffered two key state elections in the next month are expected to decide whether he can cling to power.

The minority government was formed Thursday night after the four Free Democratic party ministers in Erhard's coalition cabinet resigned. The Free Democrats and the opposition socialists have a total of 251 votes, while Erhard's Christian Democrats can count on only 245 in the Bundestag, the lower house of Parliament.

Erhard could be overthrown in the Bundestag only if the opposition got together and elected a new man, but at least 10 of the Free Democrats in Parliament have said repeatedly they would never agree to a coalition with the Socialists.

Common Pleas Court Judge

Francis J. Talty has banned news interviews with anyone connected with the case.

Mrs. Sheppard's return reportedly was hastened by a plea from her husband. She had gone to Frankfurt Oct. 1 to take care of what she termed personal and financial affairs. She had indicated she planned to return next month.

The Sheppards were married in 1964 after his attorneys got a federal district court order releasing him from the Ohio State Penitentiary and providing for a new trial. That order was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court last June. Sheppard has served nine years of a life sentence after being convicted in 1954 of second-degree murder in the bludgeoning slaying of Marilyn Sheppard, 31.

The prosecution alleged in the original trial that Sheppard killed his first wife during an argument over his attentions to another woman. Sheppard said she was killed by a bushy-haired intruder.

A tentative jury of eight men and four women has been selected. However, each side still had one more peremptory challenge giving it the right to exclude a juror without specifying a reason.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's top leaders are going to France for official visits in the next few months, the government announced.

Premier Alexei N. Kosygin will be first, the announcement said, in the first half of December. Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and President Nikolai V. Podgorny will follow sometime in 1967. The three were invited by President Charles de Gaulle during his visit here last June.

GI Gets Life For Shooting Viet Woman

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A U. S. Army private has been found guilty of murder in the shooting of a Vietnamese broad woman who was the mother of seven, the U.S. Command announced today.

A general court-martial sentenced Wallace E. Frazier, 21, of Philadelphia, to a dishonorable discharge, total forfeiture of all pay and allowances, reduction to the lowest enlisted grade and confinement at hard labor for life.

Authorities gave this description of the Sept. 1 incident:

A GI got out of a taxi across from the Brinks American billet on Saigon's bar-dotted Hai Ba Trung Street. The soldier argues with the driver and fired his pistol once.

The shot missed the driver but hit the woman, Dam Thi Mong, 33, in the heart. She was selling her bread several yards from the cab.

Saigon Ammo Dump Explodes

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two American servicemen were reported killed and 10 wounded tonight when a U.S. Army ammunition dump exploded in a huge ball of fire 12 miles north of Saigon.

First reports had said the blaze apparently inflicted only slight casualties, but Associated Press correspondent John Lengle reported from the scene that American authorities there reported a heavy casualty toll.

The spokesman said the first explosion was followed by a series of smaller ones.

The force of the explosion burst doors open in Saigon's waterfront restaurants and broke windows in some shops on the main streets.

Ears popped, and people who threw open their windows to look out saw a huge fireball in the sky. One witness described the fireball as being "just like a sunset. Then a black pillar of smoke rose into the sky."

American military police drove frantically around the city for a few minutes, certain the blast was inside Saigon itself.

10 Arrests Nip Akron Crime Ring

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Ten persons were arrested Thursday night, breaking up an organized crime group that used an airplane, walkie-talkies and special tools to steal about $750,000 in money and merchandise since 1964, police said.

The group was rounded up by Akron police, Summit County sheriff's deputies and Cuyahoga Falls police armed with 22 secret indictments returned by the Summit County Grand Jury Thursday, climaxing months of investigation by area law officers.

Summit County Prosecutor James Barbuto indicated as many as 127 separate counts may be charged against 12 people — two are still being sought—including breaking and entering, forced entry and grand larceny.

Assistant County Prosecutor Arthur Snell said the group used its own airplane to fly over a building it planned to burglarize, studying various escape routes.

"On a typical job the men wore expensive dress suits... and carried special tools in attache cases," Snell said. "They kept in constant touch with each other with walkie-talkies and in some cases wore special costumes."

Erhard Remains as Head Of Minority Government

BONN, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's new minority government suffered two parliamentary setbacks in half an hour this morning.

The Bundesrat, the house that represents the federal states, unanimously turned down a proposal to continue giving the federal government a 39 per cent share of income and corporation taxes. The 11 states want to give only 35 per cent to Bonn.

The Bundesrat declined to take a stand on the record 1967 budget of $18,475,000,000; it accepted a report of its finance committee declaring there is a deficit of more than a billion dollars.

The Bundesrat can override the Bundestag, but Erhard's success there is uncertain. Erhard was shakily holding the reins of an unprecedented minority government after his coalition partners joined the opposition. Two key state elections in the next month are expected to decide whether he can cling to power.

The minority government was formed Thursday night after the four Free Democratic party ministers in Erhard's coalition cabinet resigned. PCCAO Director Resigns; Replacement Is Employed

H. Newell Stevenson Jr. has resigned as director of the Pickaway County Community Action Organization, Inc.

The group's executive committee accepted Stevenson's resignation during a regular meeting Thursday evening.

At the same time, Mrs. Gloria Pike, Plaza Drive, was employed as a replacement. Stevenson has held the job since early spring. The new director was employed upon recommendation of the executive committee.

Mrs. Pike will take over the office on Monday. However, Mrs. William Huber, former director of the PCCAO, was employed on a part time basis until Mrs. Pike becomes familiar with the operation.

THE EXECUTIVE committee authorized Mrs. Pike to attend a meeting of the regional Office of Economic Opportunity in Chicago. She is to report on the sessions at the next meeting, scheduled for Nov. 17.

Stevenson, still in control of the office, reported that the Head Start Program, conducted during the past two summers, would have to be submitted for approval by Nov. 30, for the summer of 1967.

The director also noted that the present Head Start grant had been extended from Aug. 31, to Dec. 31, for medical, dental and optical treatments. He said the reason for the extension was a balance of $1,449 in the budget to cover the expenses.

Stevenson reported the following treatments are scheduled to be financed with the budget balance: three tonsillectomies, seven dental treatments and two youngsters are to be fitted for glasses.

It was also announced that a regional meeting will be held for Southeastern Ohio CAA personnel on Nov. 4, at Jackson. The session will serve to answer problems and offer guidelines for future programs.

Oriskany Docks at Base With Disaster Victims

SUBIC BAY, Philippines (AP) — The flame-scorched aircraft carrier Oriskany, looking like the victim of a kamikaze attack, docked in the Philippines today to say goodbye to 43 fallen shipmates and to begin what was described as a "tremendous job" of repair.

The 45,000-ton carrier steamed about 650 miles from her station in the Gulf of Tonkin where two days ago she was racked by a white hot magnesium fire.

Within two hours after the Oriskany tied up at the U.S. Naval Base on Subic Bay, the flag-draped remains of 35 officers and eight enlisted men were carried from the ship to a plane which flew them to Clark Air Force Base north of Manila on the first leg of their journey home.

Six chaplains uttered quiet prayers and a bugler sounded taps as the 3,400-man ship's company stood at attention.

As the rites were held, formal Navy investigation of the disaster was under way and hard-batted ship repair workers were swarming over the smoke-blackened, fire-twisted hangar deck where the blaze centered.

About half of the 35 officers killed were pilots, including the senior flying officer, Cmdr. Rodney Carter of Porterville, Calif.

Of the eight enlisted men killed, five were journalists.

Three other men were seriously injured and 35 others received lesser injuries.

Governors of 2 States Enter Food Price War

NEW YORK (AP) — The governors of Texas and Massachusetts have ordered immediate investigations of rising food prices in their states — both targets of housewives' super market boycott.

Gov. John A. Volpe of Massachusetts allocated $25,000 in emergency funds for a study by the State Consumers Council while Gov. John B. Connally of Texas enlisted three university presidents to draw up reports on the situation.

Both Volpe, a Republican, and Connally, a Democrat, are up for re-election next month.

Praise for the housewives' protest movement came from Esther Peterson, President Johnson's special adviser on consumer interests. Meeting with shoppers in New York City, she said the boycotts were making for more intelligent buying.

"If housewives get together and do selective shopping, they can bring prices down," she said, pointing to Denver where boycotters have claimed reductions of up to 20 per cent.

The boycotts continued to spread with at least one major report of success. Housewives in Socorro, N.M. called back their picket lines after Safeway, Stop-N-Shop and Speedway Stores announced more than 1,000 price cuts.

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — A satisfactory day of picketing spurred plans today for continued demonstrations by housewives seeking to force food prices down.

Mrs. Richard Probst, leader of the protesting women, said Thursday's turnout of about 40 pickets at chain supermarkets was satisfactory, but more pickets were being sought at a recruiting session today.

Mrs. Probst said picketing and boycotting of the stores would continue until prices were lowered.

Targets of the pickets were Kroger, Big Bear, Albers and A&P stores throughout Newark. This is the first Ohio city to have a food price protest although such demonstrations have spread across the country.

Johnson Sees

"One day," he continued, "I believe they will join our Pacific brotherhood in peace, and without the suspicions and hostility that make cooperation difficult."

"We look forward to that day," Johnson declared. "For our passion is peace. We seek no eternal hostility. We seek no dominance. And we are committed to the proposition that no nation shall dominate another in the Pacific."

The mayor, as he presented the golden key, told the President his visit "demonstrates your country's determination in continuing the search for peace in this part of the world." He said the key symbolized the fact "that Bangkok's doors are always open to you."

Despite his night's rest at the seaside resort of Bang Saen, the President still showed the strain of the past 10 days of whirlwind visits to Hawaii, American Samoa, New Zealand, Australia, the Philippines and Viet Nam. But after an hour's rest at the Boromabain mansion, he and Mrs. Johnson resumed the round decreed by royal protocol and made their way to King Bhumibol's Chittra Lada Palace for the traditional royal audience.

Afterward, the President — with memories of his own troops in Viet Nam fresh in his mind — went to Thailand's Victory Monument to place a wreath honoring Thais killed almost 30 years ago in clashes with French forces along the border with Indochina.

At the dinner given by the king at Chakri Throne Hall, Johnson assured Thailand the United States is dealing with it as an equal partner in the fight against Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

In a toast to the king, Johnson strongly refuted charges by Red China and North Viet Nam that Thailand is virtually U.S. colony.

"Today we stand as allies in common cause," he said. "At this very moment, Thai forces are assisting the South Vietnamese in their struggle against armed aggression, alongside the forces of the United States."

"You are making available facilities in Thailand of great importance to defend against Communist aggression in Southeast Asia. Your contribution is of major proportions. We know the risks you and we both run to meet the common dangers. But we know that we act from a joint conviction of common interest."

Johnson was referring to air bases in Thailand from which U.S. jet fighter-bombers take off on missions against North Viet Nam.

Business Briefs

The demand for paperboard packaging will increase over 50 per cent beyond the present volumes within the next decade, it was predicted by Leo H. Schoenhofen, president and chief executive officer of Container Corporation of America.

Speaking before the Society of Financial Analysts in St. Louis, Schoenhofen attributed this growth surge to the demands for paperboard which will be made by the food industry and other basic consumer industries. CCA operates a paperboard mill in Circleville.

"Economic studies of the future show that we at Container Corporation will have to expand our facilities for producing packaging by 50 per cent just in order to maintain our current share of the market," he said.

Schoenhofen said the packaging industry is currently enjoying a period of growth and profitability that shows promise of continuing in the future. He indicated that future growth of the packaging industry will come primarily from population expansion, an increase in the standard of living and continued upward movement of the gross national product.

Firearms Control Bill Faces Much Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The assassination of President John F. Kennedy didn't do it. The massacre on the University of Texas campus didn't do it. Appeals from President Johnson didn't do it.

Sponsors don't profess to know what it will take to pass new federal gun control legislation, but before Congress adjourned they vowed to keep trying in the next session.

A major bone of contention is whether a bill should be limited largely to handguns like revolvers and pistols or should also take in long guns—shotguns and rifles.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has been the chief sponsor of an administration-backed bill covering both handguns and long guns, but he was unable to get this measure out of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Leading the opposition was Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., who maintained that crime statistics show the handgun is "the principal offender" in the unlawful use of firearms.

On Sept. 22, the committee approved Hruska's bill by a 10-5 vote. But this was misleading. Dodd and some other opponents voted to report it out of committee in hopes the broader bill could be substituted for it on the Senate floor.

Hruska's bill would ban interstate sales of handguns to persons under 21 years of age and regulate mail order sales through an affidavit procedure under which delivery would have to be delayed seven days to give local police an opportunity to check on the purchaser.

It would place no new restrictions on mail order sales of shotguns and rifles on the ground that "their preponderant use (is) in a lawful and beneficial manner"—such as for hunting, target shooting and other recreation.

Dodd's bill would prohibit all mail order sales of handguns and regulate such sales of shotguns and rifles through affidavit controls. It also would curb imports of military surplus firearms.

Governors of 2 States Enter Food Price War

NEW YORK (AP) — The governors of Texas and Massachusetts have ordered immediate investigations of rising food prices in their states — both targets of housewives' super market boycott.

Mrs. Richard Probst, leader of the protesting women, said Thursday's turnout of about 40 pickets at chain supermarkets was satisfactory, but more pickets were being sought at a recruiting session today.

Mrs. Probst said picketing and boycotting of the stores would continue until prices were lowered.

Targets of the pickets were Kroger, Big Bear, Albers and A&P stores throughout Newark. This is the first Ohio city to have a food price protest although such demonstrations have spread across the country.

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Pentagon said it couldn't airlift Christmas gifts to Viet Nam this year, it didn't mean you should quit sending presents altogether.

A Christmas reminder issued Thursday said there is plenty of non-military transportation available for presents.

"The American fighting man still has a sweet tooth and homemade cake, candy and cookies are a greatly appreciated touch of home," the Pentagon said.

Officials said a disclosure last week that there would be no gift airlift this year had caused concern over holiday presents.

They urged gift senders to meet post office deadlines of Nov. 10 for surface mail and Dec. 10 for airmail.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government says airlines can't shirk all liability for what happens to young children who fly without an accompanying adult.

The Civil Aeronautics Board rejected airline proposals which would have released them from all liability in transportation of such persons 8 through 11 years of age.

The CAB said Thursday the airlines' plan also could have made the adult giving the child permission to travel alone, responsible for whatever sums the airline might spend on the child, "regardless of the reasonableness of the expenditures."

GM Unveils Top-Secret Auto Plans

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors today took the wraps off some of its top-secret ideas for propelling autos of the future.

The dream car ideas ranged from new-type electric batteries to fuel cells, and from gas turbines to a stirring thermal heat engine.

GM's top engineering and research brass made it plain to newsmen that none of the new power units was likely to be in general use on highways within its immediate future.

GM's decision to unveil some of its best-kept secrets came less than a month after Ford made page one news with its disclosure that it was experimenting with a new-type sodium-sulfur battery which might bring the electric auto back.

Ford said it hoped to have two experimental cars in operation with the new type batteries within five years. It predicted the 500-pound battery would give a standard Ford Falcon a 134-mile range at a 40-mile speed.

GM's executive vice president, Edward N. Cole, pointed out in remarks prepared for today's briefing for newsmen that GM had been testing the Electrovan car on its proving grounds since 1964 and that the Electrovan also had chugged up many miles in test runs. He said GM had been experimenting with battery-operated vehicles since 1956.

Haftstad described the two electric systems as:

1. A system where the fuel is carried in tanks and burned electrochemically in an energy converter — the fuel cell. GM officials said the two elements, hydrogen and oxygen, had some elements of danger from possible fire or explosion.

2. A system in which the fuel, or source of energy, is stored within the energy converter itself and which has the feature of being rechargeable — the electric battery system.

Malays Rap Johnson Visit

Burn LBJ Effigy, Stone U.S. Hotel

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Yelling students burned a life-size effigy of President Johnson today and Chinese stoned a hotel used by U.S. troops, in demonstrations protesting the President's visit Sunday.

Police have been cracking down on leftists to head off any anti-Johnson demonstrations, but they were unable under the law to invade the University of Malaysia campus where the effigy was burned. They apparently were caught by surprise in the attack on the hotel.

About 50 Chinese attacked the hotel, used by U.S. troops on rest and recreation visits to Malaysia. Police said Chinese used slingshots to fire blal berings, and threw bricks, stones and several bottles of oil. Windows were smashed at the entrance. Several U.S. soldiers in the foyer flung themselves to the floor. None was injured.

Police on guard broke up the demonstration within five minutes. The demonstrators carried banners and shouted anti-American slogans.

The effigy was burned in a shady glen of the university campus on the outskirts of Kuala Lumpur. A large red sign outside the hotel invited the public to "come and watch the burning of President Johnson."

Malays Rap Johnson Visit

Burn LBJ Effigy, Stone U.S. Hotel

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Yelling students burned a life-size effigy of President Johnson today and Chinese stoned a hotel used by U.S. troops, in demonstrations protesting the President's visit Sunday.

Police have been cracking down on leftists to head off any anti-Johnson demonstrations, but they were unable under the law to invade the University of Malaysia campus where the effigy was burned. They apparently were caught by surprise in the attack on the hotel.

About 50 Chinese attacked the hotel, used by U.S. troops on rest and recreation visits to Malaysia. Police said Chinese used slingshots to fire blal berings, and threw bricks, stones and several bottles of oil. Windows were smashed at the entrance. Several U.S. soldiers in the foyer flung themselves to the floor. None was injured.

Police on guard broke up the demonstration within five minutes. The demonstrators carried banners and shouted anti-American slogans.

The effigy was burned in a shady glen of the university campus on the outskirts of Kuala Lumpur. A large red sign outside the hotel invited the public to "come and watch the burning of President Johnson."

Firearms Control Bill Faces Much Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The assassination of President John F. Kennedy didn't do it. The massacre on the University of Texas campus didn't do it. Appeals from President Johnson didn't do it.

Sponsors don't profess to know what it will take to pass new federal gun control legislation, but before Congress adjourned they vowed to keep trying in the next session.

A major bone of contention is whether a bill should be limited largely to handguns like revolvers and pistols or should also take in long guns—shotguns and rifles.

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., has been the chief sponsor of an administration-backed bill covering both handguns and long guns, but he was unable to get this measure out of the Senate.

State Patrol Cautions Halloweeners

"A thoughtless Halloween prank often leads to a serious traffic accident," according to Sgt. J. W. Pribble, post commander of the Circleville State Highway Patrol Post.

"Placing obstructions on roadways, throwing objects from highway overpasses onto traffic below and similar pranks are extremely dangerous," points out the sergeant. "In addition, they are definite violations of law."

Ohio State Highway Patrolmen will be especially alert for any pranks that might affect traffic on the highways. Pranksters will be dealt with to the full extent of the law. If a highway death should result, it could mean a manslaughter charge.

Backing up regular Patrol officers will be members of the State Highway Patrol Auxiliary and volunteer members of amateur radio groups. These men will guard the more dangerous overpasses in the area as a deterrent to dangerous acts.

SGT. Pribble appealed to parents to keep a close watch on their children to see that things don't get out of hand and turn in acts that are dangerous or harmful to property.

He urged that children wearing masks and false faces be cautioned about crossing streets and highways. A combination of darkness and restricted visibility could add up to a child's failure to see an approaching vehicle. The result could be tragic.

"One single traffic accident could turn this season of celebration and fun into one of tragedy," said the Sergeant.

Defense Asks Cong Units Deactivated

Rep. Laird Says Letters Appear To Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department thinks that recent U.S. peace proposals include as a condition for withdrawing U.S. troops from South Viet Nam "the intent that Viet Cong military units would be deactivated," an exchange of correspondence disclosed today.

The proposals were made last month by Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg at the United Nations. Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Wis., who made public the exchange of letters with the department, said it appears to show "variance between the Department of Defense on the one hand, and Ambassador Goldberg and the Manila communique signed by President Johnson on the other."

This "is just one more indication of why the Johnson administration should spell out clearly and unequivocally what our short-term aims and long-term objectives are with regard to South Viet Nam and Southeast Asia," Laird said.

Laird wrote Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Sept. 28 asking for clarification of the administration's position on some points in the Goldberg speech. Laird said that Goldberg stated the United States would be ready to withdraw its forces under a time schedule for supervised withdrawal from South Viet Nam of all external forces, including those of North Viet Nam.

Laird said this meant that Viet Cong elements in South Viet Nam apparently would be free to continue the war.

In a reply dated Oct. 24, the acting assistant secretary, Townsend Hoopes, said he agreed that the proposal did not specifically take up the deactivation of the Viet Cong but that Goldberg in the same speech clearly linked the Viet Cong with North Vietnamese army forces.

"To be explicit, let me assure you that the Department of Defense believes Ambassador Goldberg's speech includes the intent that Viet Cong military units would be deactivated in any proposed withdrawal of external forces from South Viet Nam," Hoopes said.

Mrs. Johnson Sightseeing In Thailand

By FRANCES LEWINE

BANG SAEN, Thailand (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson didn't waste a minute today getting out to see the sights of Thailand, from wild monkeys to fields of tapioca—which provides the makings of one of the President's favorite desserts.

The Johnsons had a rest after noon at the summer residence of Premier Thanom Kittakachorn on the Gulf of Siam, 68 miles southeast of Bangkok. But Mrs. Johnson wasn't resting very long.

She took off by car, by helicopter, and in a glass-bottomed boat in the waterfront area that includes white sandy beaches, light blue waters, tiny fishing villages, and a spectacular summer sunset.

The President spent his time just relaxing, according to reports.

Mrs. Johnson, who has a full schedule of public appearances, big state dinners, and sightseeing ahead, made her afternoon tour with Mrs. Graham Martin, wife of the U.S. ambassador.

They drove past fields of tapioca, which Mrs. Johnson found looked like fields of cotton. And she was excited to see wild monkeys cawing in trees along the highway.

Their drive took them through a village, built only 10 years ago, with modern teak houses in a beach resort area. A member of Mrs. Johnson's party called

Should Actors Hold High Office?

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Should actors hold important public office? Robert Ryan answers with a resounding no, while Anne Baxter is just as firm in responding yes.

Ryan has long been one of the screen's most reliable actors—"The Set-Up," "Bad Day at Black Rock," "Battle of the Bulge." Miss Baxter, grand daughter of architect Frank Lloyd Wright, is a topflight actress and winner of the 1940 Academy Award for best supporting actress in "The Razor's Edge."

Both performers are thoughtful and articulate. They are appearing together in "The Busy Body" at Paramount, where they expressed completely divergent views on whether actors should become politicians. "Absolutely not," said Ryan, "unless they hold minor offices. There is nothing in an actor's background that qualifies him to deal with the multiplicity of problems facing government today. We need experienced men to handle such problems, we can't afford to fool around with has-been actors with nice smiles."

"Certainly actors can be politicians," counters Miss Baxter, "and I think they can do a much better job than a lot of those now in office. One of the actors tools is knowledge of human beings. What greater faculty could a person have for politics?"

The debate continues: Ryan: "I tell my sons, in an attempt to discourage them, that acting is the only profession in which you can make a great deal of money with no particular education. The average intelligence of actors is—average. Intelligence is of no particular help to an actor."

Miss Baxter: "School learning is not the be-all and end-all. I know a lot of dopes who have master's degrees. On the other hand, there are many good politicians and successful business men who never went past the sixth grade. The actor's experience is just as varied as those in other professions."

Ryan: "An actor operates out of his head, or rather, his heart. His whole training is to find his motions, to strengthen them, then to show them."

Miss Baxter: "So he must know himself very well. An actor must be objective about himself: He must say, 'You stink here,' or 'You're good there.' He learns what makes human beings tick, he is sensitive to their needs."

In conclusion, Ryan commented: "Politics needs leaders. The actor's only experience in that line is leading a horse through a scene."

To give the lady the last word: "Acting has long been the most maligned of professions. I say the actor is qualified for public office because of his understanding and sensitivity to people; and his sense of humor and sense of proportion."

Viet Nam Aid Mess

The House Government Operations Committee used strong words to flay various agencies and departments over the handling of economic aid to Viet Nam.

"Unconscionable," was one it used to describe mismanagement which was laid at the doors of the Agency for International Development, the Department of State and Defense, the General Accounting Office and the United States Information Agency.

It is no news that there is mismanagement. Reporters in Viet Nam have for months been sending back stories documenting that. Now, perhaps the outrage expressed by the House Committee, if echoed by American taxpayers, may force efforts to straighten out the mess.

An administration which is burdening taxpayers with increasing programs, increasing taxes and increasing inflation owes it to them to cut out such waste.

Mountains of goods, handled carelessly, have encouraged graft and corruption. South Viet Nam, after years of war, has trouble enough finding good government leaders without being deliberately weakened in this way. This mismanaged goods has also sharply increased inflation in the little country. Simultaneously enough of the goods has been filtering into the hands of the Viet Cong to give them aid and comfort.

There is really no excuse for such stupid mismanagement of munificence. Washington experts know the economies of small countries well enough to realize the danger of loading such a nation with too much uncontrolled goods. They know Asian history well enough to know how inevitably such mismanaged largesse would become a source of graft and corruption.

Things To Think About

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Collecting income taxes is one of the world's most thankless jobs. It is a fascinating line of work, but most men who pursue it as a career get into it largely by accident. Tax collectors are made — not born.

It should be against the law to flavor soda pop with coffee. The only drink that should taste like coffee is coffee.

You can't help but feel sorry for the x-Manhattanites who fled to the suburbs to avoid the crowds. That's where the crowds are now—in the suburbs.

The worst bores at cocktail parties are those who never say a word until they've had their third martini.

If I were setting out to make a more perfect world I'd start by taking 15 pounds from Elizabeth

Taylor and giving them to Audrey Hepburn.

Most girls who chew their fingernails drop this habit soon after they marry. Then they begin chewing out their husbands.

Good dentistry is cheap in Britain under socialized medicine. That's why you so rarely meet an Englishman with a stiff upper lip any more.

The men who argue the last about what ought to be done in Viet Nam are the men who have fought there and come back.

No matter how low the value of money falls, no middle-aged man who weathered the last great depression can drop a penny to the pavement without bending over and picking it up. He would feel guilty wasteful if he didn't.

Millionaires and musicians

generally guzzle cheaper liquor than actors and advertising men.

You can get rich betting guys at the bar that they can't draw a correct picture of the U.S. flag in three minutes.

It is also a good bet that half the teen-agers in your neighborhood can't spell all four of these words orally—knockwurst, knapsack, naphtha and nasturtium.

Wrestlers are the gentlest of all professional athletes. I have yet to hear of one whose wife divorced him on grounds of cruelty.

It's kind of eerie to think that if George Washington tried to enroll in a modern high school he'd be ruled out — on the grounds that his wig would be too distracting to the other students.

The Business World

By John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Matthew Culligan, the super salesman who was the target of a mutiny two years ago while head of Curtis Publishing Co., has returned to executive life again — a bit more philosophical now but just as zealous.

Culligan, 48, retired from executive ranks for two years after the Curtis debacle, his ego bruised and his record of successes broken. But in his second day as president of Mutual Broadcasting System, he commented:

"I'm going to work very, very hard for the next two or three years. It's going to be very rough."

He wasn't complaining. He said it with his old passion for work and results.

Culligan became an almost legendary salesman. At Curtis he averaged 3,300 miles of travel a week, worked 14 to 15 hours a day and, some said, was making headway in pulling the big publishing company out of the red. He could sell. Everyone agreed.

Except for military service, which cost him his left eye, Culligan's adult life has been spent in advertising and sales. He began as a salesman and no matter what executive job he filled he still sold. He has been a speller, space salesman, advertising director, television salesman.

As executive vice president of the National Broadcasting Co.'s radio network his salesmanship helped erase losses. After three years he reportedly put the network in the black. And then he became an ad executive.

"I try to think for the buyers," he says. "I try to make it easy for an intelligent person to buy. And I'm a very good research man so I haven't had to pound on a desk in 25 years."

Executive and employee discontent against his methods led to an open revolt at Curtis, publisher of the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines. Culligan resigned.

For the next two years little was heard of this man who once was the center of action, excitement, news, developments of one kind or another. He retreated from sales and wrote a history of the Curtis organization.

Culligan announced that his first job at Mutual will be to build the business, and he's planning an itinerary that will demand the usual killing, cross-country itinerary in search of ads.

"I've always made a practice of delivering 25 per cent of the business myself and I intend to do it here," he said.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Our neighbor's five-year-old boy still speaks baby-talk. We are sufficiently good friends for me to have taken the liberty of suggesting that it is about time that this came to an end. The mother of the child seems to encourage the baby-talk because it sounds so cute. Isn't five years a little too old for this to continue?

Mrs. E. Y., Illinois
Dear Mrs. Y.: Baby-talk in a young child is undeniably charming. The temptation to perpetuate it is great, but must be discouraged before it interferes with the relationship between him and other children.

In the nursery and early school years the charm of a child's personality and his relationship to other children depend on normal good speech. Baby talk must be considered a speech defect that needs a remedy.

One of the great handicaps to a child is a speech disorder. It is estimated that more than two million children and adults have some kind of a speech defect that interferes with their social, scholastic and business communication with other people.

It has been shown that poor or distorted speech can affect the psychological attitudes of a child by causing embarrassment and inducing a sense of inferiority and insecurity.

Social adjustment and achievement at school can fall far below the normal potential of a child with poor speech.

Calling your friend's attention to the child's speech defect can be a real contribution. Certainly, it is much kinder than to have other children ridicule or mock a child because of his defect.

There are many known physical reasons for speech defects. Malformation of the jaw, cleft palate, bands of adhesions that tie down the tongue and neurological disorders must be ruled out as possible reasons for speech defects.

Since all speech depends on good hearing it must be made certain that there are no ear infections or birth defects that interfere with hearing and later with the development of speech patterns.

At the age of five it can no longer safely be said "that a child is a slow speaker and that soon this will pass." This attitude wastes a good deal of valuable time that might be devoted to intensive and effective speech therapy.

The science of speech therapy is a highly technical one that incorporates all of the psychological techniques that can help make a "speech defective" child a happy one. The methods employed in the retraining of speech are so cleverly devised that children actually enjoy the program.

Sometimes it is an arduous one that takes a great deal of time. But there are no short cuts if good speech is to be given the child.

Speech training must begin early. In fact, many speech defects can be recognized, diagnosed and treated even before the age of two. This prevents the speech pattern from becoming so deeply ingrained that it cannot be reversed.

You did your friend and her child a service if they now investigate through their doctor the cause of the speech disorder.

Snare Being Woven

By John Chamberlain

If Americans are gambling that their troubles will be over once they have solved their problems in Southeast Asia, they may have a second think coming. For another — and possibly much greater — crisis seems to be shaping up at the southern end of the African continent.

Inexorably, at the UN, 54 delegations from the Afro-Asian states are engaged in waving a snare for Great Britain that could end by trapping all the great industrial and trading nations of the world. The first strand in the snare consists of resolutions calling upon the UN to do something effective to invalidate the old League of Nations mandate granted to South Africa to govern its neighbor territory of South-West Africa. Last July the International Court of Justice refused to pass judgment in the case when Ethiopia and Liberia entered a complaint that South Africa had violated a promise by extending apartheid to a land it had originally received in trust. Whether the "law" of the League of Nations still holds today when the League itself is long since dead is a good question. But the Afro-Asian nations insist that the morals of the situation run against South Africa, and they want the UN Security Council to use any force necessary to end apartheid in the South-West Africa territory.

The British, with their highly sensitive moral sense, are taking the side of the Afro-Asians in the argument. But the British have a practical sense, too. So, when Britain's Lord Caradon made a common front the other day with Arthur Goldberg, the chief U.S. delegate to the UN, in condemning South Africa, he was careful to advocate punitive action that would be within Britain's "clear capacity."

What does "clear capacity" mean? Looking at the situation as a pounds and pence proposition, Britain cannot possibly afford to be party to UN economic sanctions against South Africa. The British port of Southampton gets fully one-half its business from the South African trade; if this were to collapse, putting fifty thousand Britons out of work, the Wilson government would certainly have a major crisis to surmount. In a recent report to the UN Security Council, the British said their exports to South Africa amounted to two hundred million pounds a year. Where in the tight world competitive market would they find alternative markets for the motor vehicles, rayon cotton fabrics, tractors, railroad equipment, and electrical instruments that now go to Cape Town? And could the British forego the insurance income and the freight charges they now collect from South Africa? Could they give up the sixty million pounds in foreign exchange that they derive from their

South African investments? Since South Africa is Britain's third best customer, coming after the United States and Canada, the answers to these questions should be obvious. UN economic sanctions against South Africa would drag down the already beleaguered British pound. This, in turn, would involve the U.S. dollar. And the world could very well have another 1929 collapse on its hands.

This would be a man-made catastrophe, but don't be too sure that it won't happen. Moral issues, once they have been coupled with agitation that involves the intangible quality of "face," have a way of taking off to unforeseen destinations where abstract morality brings a totally immoral ruin. Now that both Arthur Goldberg and Lord Caradon have said that

South Africa has forfeited its right to keep the South-West Africa mandate, the Afro-Asian nations will hardly allow the West to forget it. The din has just started.

The other day, in New York, an influential publisher, speaking at a session in which he was seeking policy guidance, threw up his hands at the South-West Africa situation. "How," he asked, "can we get Arthur Goldberg off the hook?" To which the publisher got a sardonic answer in the form of another question: "What makes you think Arthur Goldberg wants to get off the hook?"

Goldberg may avoid the final responsibility if, as one report has it, he is contemplating resigning his UN job. But he has placed the U.S. right on the hook to stay.

Viet Nam Aid Mess

The House Government Operations Committee used strong words to flay various agencies and departments over the handling of economic aid to Viet Nam.

"Unconscionable," was one it used to describe mismanagement which was laid at the doors of the Agency for International Development, the Department of State and Defense, the General Accounting Office and the United States Information Agency.

It is no news that there is mismanagement. Reporters in Viet Nam have for months been sending back stories documenting that. Now, perhaps the outrage expressed by the House Committee, if echoed by American taxpayers, may force efforts to straighten out the mess.

An administration which is burdening taxpayers with increasing programs, increasing taxes and increasing inflation owes it to them to cut out such waste.

Mountains of goods, handled carelessly, have encouraged graft and corruption. South Viet Nam, after years of war, has trouble enough finding good government leaders without being deliberately weakened in this way. This mismanaged goods has also sharply increased inflation in the little country. Simultaneously enough of the goods has been filtering into the hands of the Viet Cong to give them aid and comfort.

There is really no excuse for such stupid mismanagement of munificence. Washington experts know the economies of small countries well enough to realize the danger of loading such a nation with too much uncontrolled goods. They know Asian history well enough to know how inevitably such mismanaged largesse would become a source of graft and corruption.

Things To Think About

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Collecting income taxes is one of the world's most thankless jobs. It is a fascinating line of work, but most men who pursue it as a career get into it largely by accident. Tax collectors are made — not born.

It should be against the law to flavor soda pop with coffee. The only drink that should taste like coffee is coffee.

You can't help but feel sorry for the x-Manhattanites who fled to the suburbs to avoid the crowds. That's where the crowds are now—in the suburbs.

The worst bores at cocktail parties are those who never say a word until they've had their third martini.

If I were setting out to make a more perfect world I'd start by taking 15 pounds from Elizabeth

Taylor and giving them to Audrey Hepburn.

Most girls who chew their fingernails drop this habit soon after they marry. Then they begin chewing out their husbands.

Good dentistry is cheap in Britain under socialized medicine. That's why you so rarely meet an Englishman with a stiff upper lip any more.

The men who argue the last about what ought to be done in Viet Nam are the men who have fought there and come back.

No matter how low the value of money falls, no middle-aged man who weathered the last great depression can drop a penny to the pavement without bending over and picking it up. He would feel guilty wasteful if he didn't.

generally guzzle cheaper liquor than actors and advertising men.

You can get rich betting guys at the bar that they can't draw a correct picture of the U.S. flag in three minutes.

It is also a good bet that half the teen-agers in your neighborhood can't spell all four of these words orally—knockwurst, knapsack, naphtha and nasturtium.

Wrestlers are the gentlest of all professional athletes. I have yet to hear of one whose wife divorced him on grounds of cruelty.

It's kind of eerie to think that if George Washington tried to enroll in a modern high school he'd be ruled out — on the grounds that his wig would be too distracting to the other students.

The Business World

By John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Matthew Culligan, the super salesman who was the target of a mutiny two years ago while head of Curtis Publishing Co., has returned to executive life again — a bit more philosophical now but just as zealous.

Culligan, 48, retired from executive ranks for two years after the Curtis debacle, his ego bruised and his record of successes broken. But in his second day as president of Mutual Broadcasting System, he commented:

"I'm going to work very, very hard for the next two or three years. It's going to be very rough."

He wasn't complaining. He said it with his old passion for work and results.

Culligan became an almost legendary salesman. At Curtis he averaged 3,300 miles of travel a week, worked 14 to 15 hours a day and, some said, was making headway in pulling the big publishing company out of the red. He could sell. Everyone agreed.

Except for military service, which cost him his left eye, Culligan's adult life has been spent in advertising and sales. He began as a salesman and no matter what executive job he filled he still sold. To him has been a speller, space salesman, advertising director, television salesman.

As executive vice president of the National Broadcasting Co.'s radio network his salesmanship helped erase losses. After three years he reportedly put the network in the black. And then he became an ad executive.

"I try to think for the buyers," he says. "I try to make it easy for an intelligent person to buy. And I'm a very good research man so I haven't had to pound on a desk in 25 years."

Executive and employee discontent against his methods led to an open revolt at Curtis, publisher of the Saturday Evening Post and other magazines. Culligan resigned.

For the next two years little was heard of this man who once was the center of action, excitement, news, developments of one kind or another. He retreated from sales and wrote a history of the Curtis organization.

Culligan announced that his first job at Mutual will be to build the business, and he's planning an itinerary that will demand the usual killing, cross-country itinerary in search of ads.

"I've always made a practice of delivering 25 per cent of the business myself and I intend to do it here," he said.

The annual California International Sea Festival, a sort of marine World Series, featuring water ski races, a fishing derby, power boat races, etc., is being held this month at Long Beach, Calif. Should make quite a splash!

The Sea Festival winds up with a 400-mile power boat race to San Francisco. That's ending the show with a bang or, at least, a loud putt-putt!

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

Our neighbor's five-year-old boy still speaks baby-talk. We are sufficiency good friends for me to have taken the liberty of suggesting that it is about time that this came to an end. The mother of the child seems to encourage the baby-talk because it sounds so cute. Isn't five years a little too old for this to continue?

Mrs. E. Y., Illinois
Dear Mrs. Y.: Baby-talk in a young child is undeniably charming. The temptation to perpetuate it is great, but must be discouraged before it interferes with the relationship between him and other children.

In the nursery and early school years the charm of a child's personality and his relationship to other children depend on normal good speech. Baby talk must be considered a speech defect that needs a remedy.

One of the great handicaps to a child is a speech disorder. It is estimated that more than two million children and adults have some kind of a speech defect that interferes with their social, scholastic and business communication with other people.

It has been shown that the poor or distorted speech can affect the psychological attitudes of a child by causing embarrassment and inducing a sense of inferiority and insecurity.

Social adjustment and achievement at school can fall far below the normal potential of a child with poor speech.

Calling your friend's attention to the child's speech defect can be a real contribution. Certainly, it is much kinder than to have other children ridicule or mock a child because of his defect.

There are many known physical reasons for speech defects. Malformation of the jaw, cleft palate, bands of adhesions that tie down the tongue and neurological disorders must be ruled out as possible reasons for speech defects.

Since all speech depends on good hearing it must be made certain that there are no ear infections or birth defects that interfere with hearing and later with the development of speech patterns.

Snare Being Woven

By John Chamberlain

If Americans are gambling that their troubles will be over once they have solved their problems in Southeast Asia, they may have a second think coming. For another — and possibly much greater — crisis seems to be shaping up at the southern end of the African continent.

Inexorably, at the UN, 54 delegations from the Afro-Asian states are engaged in waving a snare for Great Britain that could end by trapping all the great industrial and trading nations of the world. The first strand, in the snare consists of resolutions calling upon the UN to do something effective to invalidate the old League of Nations mandate granted to South Africa to govern its neighbor territory of South-West Africa. Last July the International Court of Justice refused to pass judgment in the case when Ethiopia and Liberia entered a complaint that South Africa had violated a promise by extending apartheid to a land it had originally received in trust. Whether the "law" of the League of Nations still holds today when the League itself is long since dead is a good question. But the Afro-Asian nations insist that the morals of the situation run against South Africa, and they want the UN Security Council to use any force necessary to end apartheid in the South-West Africa territory.

The British, with their highly sensitive moral sense, are taking the side of the Afro-Asians in the argument. But the British have a practical sense, too. So, when Britain's Lord Caradon made a common front the other day with Arthur Goldberg, the chief U.S. delegate to the UN, in condemning South Africa, he was careful to advocate punitive action that would be within Britain's "clear capacity."

What does "clear capacity" mean? Looking at the situation as a pounds and pence proposition, Britain cannot possibly afford to be party to UN economic sanctions against South Africa. The British port of Southampton gets fully one-half its business from the South African trade; if this were to collapse, putting fifty thousand Britons out of work, the Wilson government would certainly have a major crisis to surmount. In a recent report to the UN Security Council, the British said their exports to South Africa amounted to two hundred million pounds a year. Where in the tight world competitive market would they find alternative markets for the motor vehicles, woven cotton fabrics, tractors, railroad equipment, and electrical instruments that now go to Cape Town? And could the British forego the insurance income and the freight charges they now collect from South Africa? Could they give up the sixty million pounds in foreign exchange that they derive from their

South African investments? Since South Africa is Britain's third best customer, coming after the United States and Canada, the answers to these questions should be obvious. UN economic sanctions against South Africa would drag down the already beleaguered British pound. This, in turn, would involve the U. S. dollar. And the world could very well have another 1929 collapse on its hands.

This would be a man-made catastrophe, but don't be too sure that it won't happen. Moral issues, once they have been coupled with agitation that involves the intangible quality of "face," have a way of taking off to unforeseen destinations where abstract morality brings a totally immoral ruin. Now that both Arthur Goldberg and Lord Caradon have said that

South Africa has forfeited its right to keep the South-West Africa mandate, the Afro-Asian nations will hardly allow the West to forget it. The din has just started.

The other day, in New York, an influential publisher, speaking at a session in which he was seeking policy guidance, threw up his hands at the South-West Africa situation. "How," he asked, "can we get Arthur Goldberg off the hook?" To which the publisher got a sardonic answer in the form of another question: "What makes you think Arthur Goldberg wants to get off the hook?"

Goldberg may avoid the final responsibility if, as one report has it, he is contemplating resigning his UN job. But he has placed the U. S. right on the hook to stay.

Dear Abby:

Close for Comfort

DEAR ABBY: I am a married man who teaches school. I drive my car every day. A young woman teacher asked me to drive her home after school on the first day, and ever since then she has asked for a ride home every day.

It's not out of my way, and I don't mind so much that she has never offered to put in any gas, but I think it looks bad. You know what people start thinking when they see a man and young woman together all the time.

If I am a little late, she waits for me. If I leave early, she hurries to go with me. How can I get rid of her without insulting her? I'm afraid there has been talk already.

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: I don't agree that because a man gives a young woman a ride every day, people will talk. But if YOU do, then tell the lady that, silly as it is, people are talking, so the two-party car pool will have to be dissolved. I can't guarantee that she won't be "insulted," but your only alternative is to become permanently trapped.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter went away to college and before she left I bought her a beautiful wardrobe. She recently wrote me a letter saying she

Sister Rosa's Ordeal As Viet Cong Prisoner

PHU BINH, South Viet Nam (AP)—Sister Rosa's long night of suffering began just as school let out. The laughter of her first-graders was echoing down the road when the Viet Cong appeared in the doorway.

"You're a spy," they shouted. They ripped off her nun's habit, took her crucifix, gave her some black pajamas just like theirs and led her blindfolded out of the village of Duc My in the Mekong Delta.

It was four days before last Christmas.

The nun, 64, walked most of the night along a jagged trail. She knew it was well after midnight when they entered the bleak compound because they removed her blindfold just as the moon was setting. Then they took her rosary, clamped on handcuffs and chained her, with 21 other prisoners, to a metal bar that ran the length of the low-ceilinged thatched hut.

So began the long days of chopping wood and washing rice, and the long silent nights, and the weeks and months of never being allowed to talk to anyone, of being forbidden to kneel in prayer and having to listen to propaganda lectures against her church.

What had she done? The first of her many interrogators supplied the only clues with his opening two questions. Those English books she used in the school, they were supplied by the government, weren't they? And hadn't two of the younger nuns been seen in town buying bolts of clothing with American money?

One day this week, when the

Cincy Stranglers Probers To Seek Help Elsewhere

CINCINNATI (AP)—Police, seeking new help in their search for a killer who has raped and strangled five women here, are sending Sgt. Russell Jackson to Boston and Washington next week.

In Boston, Jackson will confer with authorities about that city's recent series of 13 strangulations. A man has allegedly confessed to the Boston crimes, and police here want to evaluate his method of operation to see if it will help in finding the Cincinnati killer.

Jackson also will visit Washington to get an up-to-date report on the FBI's investigation of evidence sent from the Cincinnati killings.

Meeting Scheduled

The Board of Managers of the Circleville Home and Hospital will meet 9:30 a. m. Nov. in the home of Miss Mary Heffner, 154 E. Mound St.

Beale Street Will Become Landmark

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—They closed up Beale Street 50 years ago and now they're going to clean it up, as befits a national historical landmark.

Today, Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and the widow of Beale Street's most illustrious son, William Christopher Handy, will be on hand for the ceremonies that declare in squalid blocks in the heart of Memphis to be, officially, a part of Americana.

For Mrs. Handy, the street holds few memories. She was the second wife of the blues composer, and married him long after he had abandoned Memphis for New York.

She welcomes the $20-million facelifting job scheduled for Beale Street as part of an urban renewal program still in its planning stages.

"It'll be a nice sight to see when it's done all over," said Mrs. Handy, now 64, in an interview at her home in Yonkers, N.Y.

Handy Park, and its towering bronze statue of the musician-composer, will remain untouched by urban renewal. Precious little else will survive the bulldozers which clear the way for a combination residential-commercial neighborhood.

While the planners hope to preserve as much of Beale Street's flavor as possible, only about 70 buildings on the short, narrow street that runs from the Mississippi River to Manassas Street are considered to be structurally sound. It is the worst slum in the city, a row of tightly packed, dreary tenements, pawn shops, pool halls, grimy cafes and cut-rate stores.

Wife Preservers

For a quick spread, drain sardines and mash with mayonnaise. Spread on crackers and sprinkle with minced green olives.

They left the final session at 10 p. m. recently and went home. Midway through the night they rushed back to the hospital where Mrs. Brandes gave birth.

Ohio Shoplifting Suspect Slain by Security Guard

SPEEDWAY, Ind. (AP)—An armed confrontation between two Ohio women who had jumped bail on shoplifting charges and two shopping center security guards investigating another shoplifting, police said ended in death Thursday for one of the women.

Mrs. Willene Robertson of Newark, Ohio, was slain in a parked automobile as she sat alongside Minnie Nesbitt, 31, Columbus, Ohio, who police said had fired a tear gas gun and pulled a 32 caliber revolver.

Indianapolis Police Sgt. Martin Elmore, off regular police duty but serving as a security guard at a store in the Speedway Shopping Center, said he fired the fatal shot—which Miss Nesbitt ducked. It struck Mrs. Robertson in the head.

Elmore and another off-duty policeman working at the store, Robert Kroening of Beech Grove attempted to arrest the women for alleged shoplifting, Speedway Police Lt. Bill Crafton related.

As the pair approached the women's auto and informed them they were under arrest, Crafton said, Miss Nesbitt fired the tear gas gun into Elmore's face, then drew the revolver. Elmore fired his 38.

Elmore was uninjured by the tear gas discharge. Miss Nesbitt also was unhurt. She was held on preliminary charges of violating the offenses against property act, resisting arrest aggravated assault and disorderly conduct.

The two women had been convicted with James A. Nowell, 31, and James W. Smith, 27, on shoplifting charges in Washington Court House, Ohio, last April 4.

The four, all giving their address as Columbus at the time, were arrested after allegedly stealing goods from stores in Washington Court House and Springfield, Ohio.

They were released on bonds totaling $15,000 pending their appeals of convictions for grand larceny and concealing stolen property. Fayette County Common Pleas Court forfeited the bonds when they failed to appear for sentencing.

Nowell later was arrested, and is serving a 1-7 year sentence in Mansfield Reformatory. Smith remains at large.

Elderly Man's Blonde Bride Has Troubles

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. (AP)—A hearing on a kidnapping charge — and possibly other troubles — today faced Pearl Choate, 59, the blonde bride who married her 95-year-old spouse Wednesday, a step ahead of police.

The kidnapping charge against the woman, who served 12 years of a murder conviction between 1949 and 1963, was filed Tuesday when she disappeared with A. Otis Birch, an elderly multimillionaire California philanthropist.

After the pair left the home of her brother in this West Texas oil town Tuesday, the kidnap charges were filed. Earlier that day she had been charged with simple assault following a butcher knife attack on Harlan J. Moehn, a cousin of Mrs. Birch. Mrs. Birch died here Oct. 7.

After posting bond on the assault charge, Pearl and Otis drove to Duncan, Okla., where she said they spent Tuesday night. Then, Wednesday morning, she went on, they went to Altus, Okla., and were married. Birch, who made what Pearl said was about $200 million in oil and citrus, became the woman's seventh husband.

The two returned to Breckenridge with a marriage license and she promptly posted $5,000 bond on the kidnap charge, on which a hearing was set for today.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter went away to college and before she left I bought her a beautiful wardrobe. She recently wrote me a letter saying she needs some new clothes because she has been dating the same boy for the last two months and he has seen all her dresses. How should I answer her?

MANKATO MOM

DEAR MOM: Tell her to get another boy friend and start over.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a rest home where about 75 per cent of the patients are senile. They tell their families that we don't feed them, or bathe them, and that we steal from them. Abby, some folks actually believe these stories. Don't they realize that these old folks are mentally all there at times?

Five minutes after they have cursed us and have even tried to strike us, they are hugging and kissing us, having forgotten all they've said and done. Please print this so the families of these poor old souls will realize that if we didn't love and understand them we wouldn't be working here.

"UNDERSTANDS"

DEAR UNDERSTANDS: Or, child to you, and to others who continue to work in places where this type of understanding is so desperately needed. I agree, the only way to handle those who are not responsible for their actions, be they senile or mentally ill, is to love them, love them, love them.

DEAR ABBY: That young working wife who didn't have time to call her mother, because her mother kept her on the phone for at least 20 minutes, sure burned me up. She should be in my shoes. My mother has been dead for 18 years, and if I only could, I'd call her every day and twice on Sundays no matter how busy I was. Sincerely,

CYNTHIA G.

One day this week, when the number of men and women chained to the long bar had reached 5, there was feverish activity among the guards. They hurried half the prisoners into sampans and promised to return for the rest.

That afternoon, advance elements of the 9th Division of the South Vietnamese army, on a sweep through Vinh Binh Province, overran the Viet Cong base camp and found 18 handcuffed, blindfolded prisoner.

Sister Rosa sat in the welcome sunlight, rubbing the raw writ where the handcuff had been, remembering it all. Children were laughing and playing in the school yard outside her temporary quarter at the South Vietnamese army dependents' school.

Sister Rosa, whose Vietnamese name is Trinh Thi Guong, remembered being moved from camp to camp during her 10 months' imprisonment, sometimes on foot, sometimes by sampan. She remembers the priest who smiled a faint smile of recognition, then went off to die of scurvy. She remembers another priest who was led down the road with three other prisoners but never returned with them. She remembers the woman who died in childbirth, and the young Cambodian boy whose stomach bloated from bad rice so that he died a slow death in irons.

U.S. Plans No Speed-Up In Antimissile Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say they have no plans to speed development of the controversial Nike X antimissile defense system because of Red China's reported missile-launched nuclear success.

In addition, they said they have no plans to use the added $15.5 million appropriated by Congress this year to begin procurement of the complicated system, which has been under development since 1957 at a cost of more than $2 billion.

There is no need to use the extra funds now, the officials said, because there is no clear Red Chinese missile threat now.

They described as not surprising the apparently successful test-firing Thursday of a Chinese missile-launched atomic device. But at present rates of progress, they added, Red China's nuclear capability will be limited for many years.

The officials said they have evidence that China is working on the development of intercontinental ballistic missiles capable of threatening the United States, but said the actual deployment of those weapons is about 10 years away. The United States could begin producing antiballistic missiles long before then, they noted.

The officials said the reported Chinese blast falls within U.S. expectations, as outlined by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara at a North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting last December.

He said then: "The Chinese appear to be making an intensive effort to develop a medium-range ballistic missile which possibly could become operational as early as 1967. It is estimated they could probably deploy several launchers by 1968 or 1969, and several dozen by 1976. It is probable that they have already begun an ICBM development program. This program could result in an initial deployment as early as 1975."

Whether to begin production of the Nike X system has long been a sore point of contention between McNamara and Congress.

The defense secretary, while endorsing funds for research, has consistently delayed making a decision on the system. A key bottleneck has been whether to go ahead with a so-called "thin" defense at a cost of $4 billion to $9 billion or a sophisticated system including fallout shelters at a cost of up to $10 billion.

On occasion McNamara has expressed doubt about the effectiveness of either version.

4 Persons Hurt In 3 - Vehicle Collision on 23

SERIOUS ACCIDENT — A Jackson woman was critically injured in a collision Thursday on Route 23 involving two autos and a log truck. Sheriff Dwight Radcliff (left) and his staff investigated the accident.

Four persons were taken to Berger Hospital shortly before 1 p. m. Thursday following a collision on Route 23 involving two automobiles and a tractor trailer truck loaded with logs.

Listed in "critical" condition in Berger Hospital today is Mrs. Alice Clark, 75, of Jackson. She suffered severe facial lacerations, contusions, and other injuries.

A diabetic, Mrs. Clark is also suffering from shock. Her husband, Sam Clark, 70, was treated by the Berger emergency staff for abrasions and contusions and released.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Markham, 60, of Marion, were admitted to Berger Hospital and then transferred to Marion General Hospital.

MRS. MARKHAM suffered a fractured right knee, a fractured arm, three fractured ribs and numerous lacerations and abrasions.

Markham sustained fractures of both knees, ribs, sternum and multiple facial lacerations.

All three vehicles were southbound on Route 23, with the truck in the lead, according to testimony given investigating officers from the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department.

The truck was in the passing lane of the highway with its left turn signal blinking, officers were told.

The car driven by Markham, auto, started to pass the truck on the right.

At that instant, the truck driver started to turn right into the lane that leads to a sawmill behind the auto wrecking yard.

MRS. MARKHAM'S car smashed into the left rear of the truck. Clark applied his brakes, but crashed into the rear of Markham's car before he could get stopped.

Both cars were demolished by the impact. The truck trailer received very light damage.

The driver of the truck, Johnny C. Montgomery, 27, Columbus, was cited by the sheriff's department for changing lanes without caution.

Handling the investigation were Sheriff Dwight Radcliff and Deputies George Linder and James Lockard.

The Pickaway County Society of Crippled Children and Adults will meet 1:30 p. m. Tuesday at unit headquarters, 108 Reber Ave.

One hundred miles of Forest Service roads, 1,000 miles of foot trails, 11 picnic and 16 camping areas, 47 lakes and ponds and 650 miles of fishable streams are located in the vast White Mountain National Forest in New Hampshire.

New High on Pay, Benefits Set at General Electric

Company-wide pay and benefits for the General Electric Co. rose to a new record high of $2.1 billion during the first nine months of 1966, according to a latest quarterly report.

Employees this year have received compensation at a rate 20 per cent higher than for the comparable 1965 period, company officials said.

Circleville Lamp plant participated in these increases. According to E.G. Grigg, plant manager, "wage increases given at the Circleville plant during the last quarter, along with employment hikes, were responsible for local gains."

GE also reported 1966 sales through Sept. 30 of $5,165,463 - 000, an increase of 19 per cent over comparable 1965 sales of $4,330,651,000.

Earnings for the nine-month period were $271,894,000, or $2.98 a share, up 14 per cent from 1965 results of $238,237,000.

Ohio Board To Give Aid To Industry

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A new state commission has been formed to administer an industry-aiding program already funded with $10 million.

The makeup of the new Ohio mission was announced Thursday by Ohio Development Director Fred P. Neuschwander who is chairman of the new commission.

The last legislature approved a $10 million rotary fund for a program to aid in the extension of sewer and water lines to new industrial sites. The law-makers specified that the program be operated by a new state commission.

The rotary fund money will be granted to county commissions to defer assessments on agricultural property for water and sewer line extensions for industry.

Other state officials on the commission are Agriculture Director John Stackhouse, Health Director Emmett W. Arnold and Natural Resources Director Fred E. Morr. Other commissioners are Sherman Unger of Cincinnati, Harle Hicks of Cincinnati, Putnam County, and Ralph G. Davis of Ashtabula.

Navy Lists New Program

The U. S. Navy Recruiting Service has just been authorized to enlist or re-enlist 200 first class and chief petty officers under a new open rate program, according to Petty Officer Michael Kovach, local recruiter.

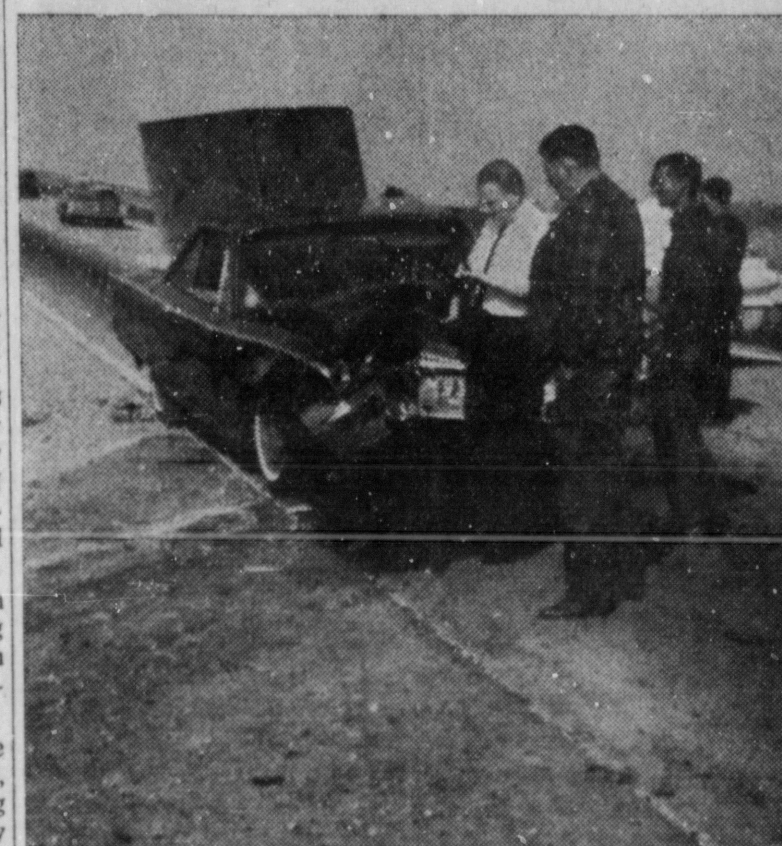

Applicants applying for this program, Officer Kovach said, must have at least 24 months experience as a technician or programmer for the machine accountants and data system technicians' posts.

Qualified applicants will be enlisted into the regular Navy for a minimum of two years.

Kovach, officer in charge of the Lancaster and Circleville recruiting offices, said that he can furnish complete details on this new program to those that feel they are qualified and would like to take advantage of the opportunity to join the Navy while continuing to work within their chosen field.

Officer Kovach is stationed at the Circleville Post Office between 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. on Thursday. The remainder of the week he is at his office in Lancaster.

President Fred J. Borch said the sales increase was shared by each of the company's major product types — consumer products, heavy capital goods, industrial components and materials and aerospace and defense products — reflecting the current high levels of business activity.

Earnings in the first nine months of 1966 amounted to 5.3 cents per dollar of sales, compared with 5.5 cents in the comparable period of 1965. This decline reflected in part the continuing pressure of rising cost levels, as well as increased expenditures in connection with expansion and modernization of the company's facilities, such as the current $2 million expansion in Circleville.

These expenditures, Borch said, are essential in order to remain competitive and to meet the rising demand for both commercial and defense products.

Results were reported on the world-wide basis of consolidation adopted by the company for its 1965 Annual Report. Results for 1965 also were recast to this basis.

Purchases of materials, supplies and services from other companies also set a record, amounting to a nine-month total of $2.5 billion.

Also during this period, General Electric made provision for payment of more than $313 million in direct taxes and renegotiation to federal state and local governments, in addition to indirect taxes included in prices paid to suppliers.

for its 1965 Annual Report. Results for 1965 also were recast to this basis.

Sen. Dirksen Defends Budget On Behalf Of His Friend LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Toule-haired Everett M. Dirksen, the Republican leader, rose in the Senate to protest. There had been a lot of economy talk in Congress but the voting was for near-record big spending.

The Illinois senator said he was protesting on behalf of his friend, President Johnson. They had conferred the night before.

"You should have heard him on the budget," Dirksen told his colleagues. "He fulminated like Hurricane Inez! He realizes what we are doing to his budget."

"With reckless abandon we spend money as if it had no value and as if there were no bottom to the barrel."

Dirksen's plea resulted in a Senate cut in a spending authorization bill that was pending at the moment — a cut of less than 1 per cent as related to the administration's over-all budget requests.

Ironically it was an antipover program cut slightly below the authorization that had been requested by the President.

And while he continued to argue and vote — with little further success — for more cuts, Dirksen earlier in the 1966 session of Congress was among those who voted to add to a housing bill $900 million more than Johnson had sought.

A definitive record of how specific members of Congress voted as compared to how they talked regarding spending is not available because the legislators decided against recording roll call votes on some of the major authorization and spending bills. Amendments offered to increase or cut were disposed of most of the time by voice of head-count votes.

Johnson's budget proposals were exceeded right and left on education and some other programs; he frequently urged the legislators to apply the brakes.

On the other hand, his budget contained cutbacks in several popular programs which his critics said they knew would be rejected by Congress and were intended only to raise an economy smoke-screen.

And Republicans charged that Johnson not only failed to veto bills which went beyond his budget but also failed to rally any substantial numbers of

Democrats to oppose them.

The congressional tally showed that Congress voted more than $144 billion in appropriations this year, the second biggest total on record. The only higher mark was $147 billion in 1942, a World War II year.

But legislators claimed that they went beyond Johnson's budget on only two of the 15 money bills and that, over-all, they made a net reduction of $88 million below the President's requests.

However, Budget Bureau experts, who keep track of all spending legislation for the President, had a different version of the actions of the second session of the 89th Congress.

They said the real effect of these actions would be to boost the spending levels in Johnson's budget by about $2.5 billion unless he exercised his right to impound some of the funds.

The congressional net cut in total appropriations, they said, did not take account of many other items which require more spending.

Included in these, the officials said, were increases far beyond the President's recommendations in pay hikes for government civilian employees and military personnel; a GI cold war veterans bill providing education and home loan benefits which the President did not favor; greatly expanded highway spending; and allotments for purchases of home mortgages which greatly exceeded administration proposals.

On the other hand, the bureau said, some of the appropriation cuts voted by Congress were more apparent than real.

For example, a substantial reduction was made in the funds for public assistance grants to the states. But if past experience holds, this will have to be restored in a supplemental money bill early next year.

Dirksen took charge of an economy drive after meeting with Johnson at the White House last Oct. 3. It was after that session that Dirksen told the Senate the President had "fulminated like Hurricane Inez!"

An immediate result of this was that Dirksen won a Senate vote to cut the antipoverty authorization bill by $750 million, back to the $1.75 million figure Johnson had proposed.

But the GOP leader didn't have much success after that.

He tried to attach a rider to a public works money bill authorizing the President to impound 20 per cent of the funds.

This measure contained money for hundreds of irrigation, flood control and navigation projects all over the country. Dirksen's motion lost 50 to 17.

Democrats who handled education and welfare bills said they were quite willing to accept the responsibility for going beyond the budget when they felt this was justified.

But they said sometimes the shoe was on the other foot. For example, they pointed out that in August Senate Republicans voted almost solidly to add $900 million to a housing bill for low-interest rate college dormitory loans. Johnson had not asked this but Dirksen supported it; Williams was the only Republican to vote no. The item later was killed in the Senate-House conference on the bill.

In the house, Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, senior Republican on the appropriations committee was a leading economy advocate. He told the House in April "I want to protect him (Johnson) from those who want to spend more than he is proposing."

Bow proposed across - the board cuts on several of the appropriations bills, but all of back in the school lunch and school milk programs — a cut back which Johnson recommended.

Others who took an active part in the drive to cut appropriations and authorizations included Sens. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio and Allen J. Ellender, D-La., and Reps. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, Paul C. Jones, D-Mo and Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo.

Here is how the economy advocates voted on bills which exceeded administration requests:

The $58 billion defense bill passed the House with only one vote against it, By Rep. George E. Brown, D-Calif. It was $946 million over the budget. Senate amendments to cut it by $500 million lost. Williams voted for the cuts, Dirksen, Ellender and Lausche voted against them.

A compromise $10.4 billion bill financing the labor, and health, education and welfare departments passed without a record vote in either branch. It provided $529 million more than Johnson asked for college student loans, health research, and impacted area schools.

A $4.1 billion bill financing hundreds of rivers and harbors and flood control projects was opposed by Laird, Curtis, Lausche and Williams and supported by Bow, Gross, Jones, Ellender and Dirksen. It included 24 items not in the budget, one in Gross' district and the Erie-Ohio River canal project of interest to Bow's district. Ellender, the manager of the bill in the Senate, got into it several Louisiana items not included in the budget.

The $7 billion agriculture appropriations bill provided $48 million more than was requested for the milk-lunch programs. Bow, Jones, Gross and Laird voted for it and Curtis against it in the House. The Senate added $14.5 million more; Ellender, Lausche and Williams voted for it, Dirksen against it.

A $6.1 billion bill authorizing $1.7 billion more in aid to grade and high schools than Johnson asked went through the Senate without a record vote. In the House, Curtis voted against it; Bow, Laird, Gross and Jones didn't vote.

Grocer Provides Grain For Hungry Deer Herd

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. (AP) — Charles Johnson, concerned about reports that the state's deer herd is starving, wants to see the deer coming through the rye this winter.

Johnson, a grocer, has offered a pocketful of rye seed to any hunter who promises to scatter the seed in the fields. He said rye springs up in about a week and stays green all winter, providing food for birds and rabbits, as well as deer.

Forced To Flee Dam Epidemic

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Nettie Eggers of Penawawa, Wash., put her two-bedroom bungalow on wheels this year and moved 25 uphill miles to another town, as a refugee from Washington State's epidemic of dams.

If the town of Penawawa had made it to 1972, it would have been 100 years old. But already the waters of the Snake River — backed up by the Little Goose Dam — are submerging the town.

Mrs. Eggers is one of many refugees from the state's burgeoning water system.

Since Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams started the concrete epidemic in the Columbia River system a quarter century ago, many a desert town has waxed fat and new ones have popped up on the newly irrigated land.

But some, like Penawawa, have died or soon will drown in filling reservoirs.

Mayfield, Kosmos and Riffe are on the Cowlitz River in the path of the Mossyrock and Mayfield Dam projects. Other affected towns are on the main stem of the Columbia or the Snake rivers.

Construction of Grand Coulee Dam necessitated the moving, or razing, of 11 communities, 500 farms, many Indian graves, power lines, fences, 29 miles of railroad, 180 miles of streets, highways and roads. It also required building three major and six smaller bridges, clearing 47,000 acres of land and logging 25 million board feet of timber — just to make way for water.

The process has been going on ever since. From Bonneville to Canada the Columbia flows only through the powerhouses of the dams — or down the irrigation canals of the million-acre desert it has made to blossom.

Most Washington villages affected by the rising waters shrink when moved. Often there is argument over a new site.

"We couldn't agree on where we wanted to go when Rocky Reach Dam was built," said a woman in the post office at Entiat. "So now we've really got two towns, one on each side of the highway and about half a mile apart. And most of the folks who fought over the location have moved away."

Sen. Dirksen Defends Budget On Behalf Of His Friend LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Toule-haired Everett M. Dirksen, the Republican leader, rose in the Senate to protest. There had been a lot of economy talk in Congress but the voting was for near-record big spending.

The Illinois senator said he was protesting on behalf of his friend, President Johnson. They had conferred the night before.

"You should have heard him on the budget," Dirksen told his colleagues. "He fulminated like Hurricane Inez! He realizes what we are doing to his budget."

"With reckless abandon we spend money as if it had no value and as if there were no bottom to the barrel."

Dirksen's plea resulted in a Senate cut in a spending authorization bill that was pending at the moment — a cut of less than 1 per cent as related to the administration's over-all budget requests.

Ironically it was an antipovertry program cut slightly below the authorization that had been requested by the President.

And while he continued to argue and vote — with little further success — for more cuts, Dirksen earlier in the 1966 session of Congress was among those who voted to add to a housing bill $900 million more than Johnson had sought.

A definitive record of how specific members of Congress voted as compared to how they talked regarding spending is not available because the legislators decided against recorded roll call votes on some of the major authorization and spending bills. Amendments offered to increase or cut were disposed of most of the time by voice of head-count votes.

Johnson's budget proposals were exceeded right and left on education and other programs; he frequently urged the legislators to apply the brakes.

On the other hand, his budget contained cutbacks in several popular programs which his critics said they knew would be rejected by Congress and were intended only to raise an economy smoke-screen.

And Republicans charged that Johnson not only failed to veto bills which went beyond his budget but also failed to rally any substantial numbers of

Democrats to oppose them.

The congressional tally showed that Congress voted more than $144 billion in appropriations this year, the second biggest total on record. The only higher mark was $147 billion in 1942, a World War II year.

But legislators claimed that they went beyond Johnson's budget on only two of the 15 money bills and that, over-all, they made a net reduction of $88 million below the President's requests.

However, Budget Bureau experts, who keep track of all spending legislation for the President, had a different version of the actions of the second session of the 89th Congress.

They said the real effect of these actions would be to boost the spending levels in Johnson's budget by about $2.5 billion unless he exercised his right to impound some of the funds.

The congressional net cut in total appropriations, they said, did not take account of many other items which require more spending.

Included in these, the officials said, were increases far beyond the President's recommendations in pay hikes for government civilian employees and military personnel; a GI cold war veterans bill providing education and home loan benefits

Chillicothe Area Residents Tour Deer Creek Dam

CHILLICOTHE — The Deer Creek Reservoir, when completed, is expected to lower Chillicothe's flood stage by as much as 1.6 feet at times of major storms, a group of Ross county officials and residents were told this week.

A tour arranged by the Chillicothe Area Chamber of Commerce was conducted of the dam site.

Major Fred Clarke, assistant resident engineer for the project from the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers at Huntington, W. Va., told tour members the dam is 64 per cent complete.

which the President did not favor; greatly expanded highway spending; and allotments for purchases of home mortgages which greatly exceeded administration proposals.

On the other hand, the bureau said, some of the appropriation cuts voted by Congress were more apparent than real.

For example, a substantial reduction was made in the funds for public assistance grants to the states. But if past experience holds, this will have to be restored in a supplemental money bill early next year.

Dirksen took charge of an economy drive after meeting with Johnson at the White House last Oct. 3. It was after that session that Dirksen told the Senate the President had "fulminated like Hurricane Inez!"

An immediate result of this was that Dirksen won a Senate vote to cut the antipoverity authorization bill by $750 million, back to the $1.75 billion figure Johnson had proposed.

But the GOP leader didn't have much success after that.

He tried to attach a rider to a public works money bill authorizing the President to impound 20 per cent of the funds.

This measure contained money for hundreds of irrigation, flood control and navigation projects all over the country. Dirksen's motion lost 50 to 17.

Democrats who handled education and welfare bills said they were quite willing to accept the responsibility for going beyond the budget when they felt this was justified.

But they said sometimes the shoe was on the other foot. For example, they pointed out that in August Senate Republicans voted almost solidly to add $900 million to a housing bill for low-interest rate college dormitory loans. Johnson had not asked this but Dirksen supported it; Williams was the only Republican to vote no. The item later was killed in the Senate-House conference on the bill.

In the house, Rep. Frank T. Bow of Ohio, senior Republican on the appropriations committee was a leading economy advocate. He told the House in April "I want to protect him (Johnson) from those who want to spend more than he is proposing."

Bow proposed across-the-board cuts on several of the appropriations bills, but all of back in the school lunch and school milk programs — a cut back which Johnson recommended.

Others who took an active part in the drive to cut appropriations and authorizations included Sens. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio and Allen J. Ellender, D-La., and Reps. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, Paul C. Jones, D-Mo and Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo.

Here is how the economy advocates voted on bills which exceeded administration requests:

The $58 billion defense bill passed the House with only one vote against it, By Rep. George E. Brown, D-Calif. It was $946 million over the budget. Senate amendments to cut it by $500 million lost. Williams voted for the cuts, Dirksen, Ellender and Lausche voted against them.

A compromise $10.4 billion bill financing the labor, and health, education and welfare departments passed without a record vote in either branch. It provided $529 million more than Johnson asked for college student loans, health research, and impacted area schools.

A $4.1 billion bill financing hundreds of rivers and harbors and flood control projects was opposed by Laird, Curtis, Lausche and Williams and supported by Bow, Gross, Jones, Ellender and Dirksen. It included 24 items not in the budget, one in Gross' district and the Erie-Ohio River canal project of interest to Bow's district. Ellender, the manager of the bill in the Senate, got into it several Louisiana items not included in the budget.

The $7 billion agriculture appropriations bill provided $48 million more than was requested for the milk-lunch programs. Bow, Jones, Gross and Laird voted for it and Curtis against it in the House. The Senate added $14.5 million more; Ellender, Lausche and Williams voted for it, Dirksen against it.

A $6.1 billion bill authorizing $1.7 billion more in aid to grade and high schools than Johnson asked went through the Senate without a record vote. In the House, Curtis voted against it; Bow, Laird, Gross and Jones didn't vote.

A $9.7 billion higher education bill—increased $700 million over the budget — passed the House without any opposition. Dirksen voted for it in the Senate, Williams and Lausche against it.

Treatment Offers Temporary Aid in Some Cancer Cases

TOKYO (AP) — The woman was in a coma from breast cancer that had spread its seeds to her brain.

Ten days later she walked out of the hospital after one injection of radioactive atoms that sped like guided missiles to strike at her widespread cancers.

The benefits lasted two months. A second treatment brought a similar period of temporary good health until she died.

Several patients have won such reprieves from far-advanced cancers for up to a year, and there are hopes this new weapon can be made far more effective and longer-lasting, Dr. Irving L. Spar of the University of Rochester, N.Y., told the Ninth International Cancer Congress today.

The treatment is based on a finding that fibrinogen — a blood element that helps form blood clots — concentrates around cancerous growths. The reason may be that a cancer sets up an inflammatory reaction, or because of some reaction between the cancer and the host, Dr. Spar said.

Antibodies, or fighters, against fibrinogen are prepared by injecting human fibrinogen into rabbits and then atoms of radioactive iodine-131 are attached to the fibrinogen antibodies.

Normal fibrinogen carries the injected antibodies and their anticancer radioactive rays to the sites of cancer in the human body.

Reporting for a team of researchers, Spar said tests on 175 patients showed that the radioactive material will go more than half the time to the cancer spots, in most types of cancer, and localize there. It has localized every time in bone cancers.

Treatment Offers Temporary Aid in Some Cancer Cases

TOKYO (AP) — The woman was in a coma from breast cancer that had spread its seeds to her brain.

Ten days later she walked out of the hospital after one injection of radioactive atoms that sped like guided missiles to strike at her widespread cancers.

The benefits lasted two months. A second treatment brought a similar period of temporary good health until she died.

Several patients have won such reprieves from far-advanced cancers for up to a year, and there are hopes this new weapon can be made far more effective and longer-lasting, Dr. Irving L. Spar of the University of Rochester, N.Y., told the Ninth International Cancer Congress today.

The treatment is based on a finding that fibrinogen — a blood element that helps form blood clots — concentrates around cancerous growths. The reason may be that a cancer sets up an inflammatory reaction, or because of some reaction between the cancer and the host, Dr. Spar said.

Antibodies, or fighters, against fibrinogen are prepared by injecting human fibrinogen into rabbits and then atoms of radioactive iodine-131 are attached to the fibrinogen antibodies.

Normal fibrinogen carries the injected antibodies and their anticancer radioactive rays to the sites of cancer in the human body.

Reporting for a team of researchers, Spar said tests on 175 patients showed that the radioactive material will go more than half the time to the cancer spots, in most types of cancer, and localize there. It has localized every time in bone cancers.

No agreement has been reached by the striking local 1017, Flint Glass Workers (AFL-CIO), and General Electric officials at Logan.

The Logan Glass plant, which supplies certain types of glass to the Circleville Lamp plant, and the union have scheduled a meeting Nov. 3.

John E. Hamilton is now serving in Viet Nam.

His address is: L-Cpl. John E. Hamilton 2192418 USMC, 2nd Bn. 1st Marine FMF, H & S Co. Comm. Sec. c-o FPO San Francisco, Calif. 96608.

His address is: Pvt. Paul J. White Jr. US 51876050, Co. C 4th Bt. 1st Brigade, USATC, Infantry, 5th Plt. Fort Benning, Ga. 31905.

Pvt. Walter W. Coleman, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Coleman, Route 2, Amanda, recently completed eight weeks of basic training at Fort Campbell, Ky.

He will soon be assigned to a hospital at Fort Devins, Mass., where he will specialize in dental work.

Coleman is a 1966 graduate of Amanda - Clearcreek High School and was inducted into the Army in August.

George Hamilton Gets Draft Order

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor George Hamilton, a frequent escort of Lynda Bird Johnson, has been ordered by his draft board to report for physical examination on Nov. 7.

Similar orders have gone out to 70,000 other men from draft boards across the nation. Other factors in prior deferments would be studied after the new physicals are completed, the Selective Service said.

Hamilton, 27, is classified as 2-A on the grounds that members of his family depend on him for support.

TRY THE WORLD'S TOUGHEST 2-DOOR

This new Chevy pickup looks so good you could call it a 2-door. (You could also call it the toughest Chevy pickup ever built!)

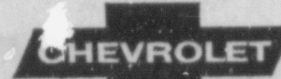

This Fleetside pickup's got a lot more than good looks going for you.

It's got new construction to bring you more durability, working ease, comfort and safety. Check that new all-steel pickup box, for example. New full double-wall side panels and tailgate keep your load from leaving its mark on Chevy's good looks. And new measures have been taken to help keep out rust and corrosion. Like the one-piece wheelhouseings that now protect sheet metal against tire splash.

Inside, the color-keyed cab looks and feels like a pleasant place to work. There are a number of new safety features, too: an energy-absorbing steering wheel and a dual master cylinder brake system, to name two.

And here's another thing the new Chevy pickup's got going for you: it rides better than some cars. Choose from 26 Fleetside and Stepside models now at your Chevrolet dealer's.

Papal Ruling May Stir Up New Turmoil

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Recent papal permission for nuns to give each other Communion in regions lacking priests is expected to spark a renewed cry for women priests.

An ordained female priesthood in the Roman Catholic Church is the ultimate goal of at least one women's group. Some Catholic women smart under a feeling of secondary status within Church law — and the pontiff's decision on the nuns could be used to argue for further concessions.

Pope Paul VI ruled that any Mother Superior in a mission-land convent could distribute the sacrament if no priest was available. But he said it must be done within the convent, only for other nuns, only for as long as a priest is absent, and without any power to consecrate the Communion bread.

Such consecration forms the heart of the Roman Catholic Mass and is the special function of the priest. Latin-American bishops, especially from Brazil and Chile, had asked during the Vatican Ecumenical Council that missionary priests be allowed to consecrate many Communion hosts and leave them behind at convents for the nuns to use.

On-hundred years after Jesus lived on earth, Greek Christians would not raise a sword against Roman Christians. He considered himself Christian first and Greek second. The master emotion of early Christianity was a shared love for God, in favor of which other emotions were restrained.

Billy Graham Plans Visit To Viet Nam

BERLIN (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham announced Thursday he plans to go to Viet Nam in the near future and "preach the Gospel" to American fight ing men.

And if he could get at them, he added, he would talk to the Communist Viet Cong also.

"I don't know if there is any Christian movement in the Viet Cong," Graham told a news conference at the first World Congress on Evangelism, "but it would certainly be a wonderful experience if I could reach them."

"I'd go to Hanoi also," he said, "but I am not sure that an American would be welcome there."

Graham said he was invited to visit South Viet Nam 18 months ago by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces there.

"I was unable to accept the invitation then because of an operation but I plan to make the trip in the near future," he said.

Graham is honorary chairman of the evangelism congress. It brings together 1,200 churchmen from more than 100 nations for 10 days of meetings, discussions and addresses on the role of modern evangelism and methods by which it can be rekindled.

Ham Operator Links Family, Viet Wounded

NEW YORK (AP) — A retired Navy captain, manning a ham radio in the basement of his home, is bringing together the voices of wounded U.S. fighting men on a hospital ship off Viet Nam with their families 9,000 miles away.

"It's an unbelievable surprise for the mothers and fathers. They don't know in advance that it's coming and they just can't get over it sometimes," says A. Blair Jones.

Jones, an Annapolis graduate who retired from the Navy in 1960 after 30 years, radios daily from his home in Westbury, N.Y., a Long Island suburb, to the U.S.S. Repose.

By making a telephone-radio connection he is able to link the men with their parents or girl friends in the metropolitan area.

It happened while I was hiking in the mountains . . . suddenly I came into a clearing and saw the crumbling foundations of what had once meant shelter and protection for a pioneer family. Rugged mountains surrounded the decayed dwelling on three sides. But in front there opened a panorama across a valley which in all its beauty held me spellbound.

I turned and noticed a small old-fashioned rose bush which seemed to reminisce with yesteryear beside the moldering stoop. I could feel the presence of those long-ago people. How they must have loved this place. The woman had tended flowers and vegetables here, had borne her babies and had helped her man carve a life from the wilderness.

What was their secret . . . these pioneer people? Where did they find the courage and confidence needed to face the privations and dangers of primitive living? God was their refuge and strength. Their love of Him illumined their lives, and goodness graced their days.

Just so today, God and His Church are the source of all bounty, greatness, and joy. They are yours for the asking.

Courthouse Toured by CHS Classes

Last Thursday Mrs. Boggs' American government students went to jail and then to the courthouse. They didn't do anything wrong, it was just a field trip to help the class become better acquainted with local government.

The tour began with the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department. Sheriff Dwight Radcliff personally guided the government students through the department. He explained each section of the office and its purpose and answered the questions of the students. The class saw the communications area, the sheriff's private office the deputies' room and part of the jail.

The second part of the tour was conducted by Wayne Hines Pickaway County Commissioner. He took the class through the various offices in the Courthouse. The operation of Probate Court was explained by Guy Cline Probate Judge.

In the County Recorder's office Mrs. Hazel Yeatts showed the students the vault in which all records of deeds, mortgages and similar documents are stored. Mrs. Marvinne Rhodes, county auditor briefed the class on the job of auditor and introduced her fellow employees. The next stop was the office of County Treasurer Robert Wood. Mrs. Margaret Steele showed the vault in which all county tax money is kept upon collection. The Court of Common Pleas was the last stop on the tour for the government students. Judge William Ammer explained what type of cases are tried and what procedures are followed.

Motorists beware! Come Monday night when witches and goblins make the scene, our streets will be death traps for children. One motorist driving recklessly is all it takes to mar the weekend for Circleville citizens. One injury caused by an unalert driver could force the celebration of Halloween to be observed in the daytime. One child, hit by a speeding car, could be crippled for life. So motorists, you, too, beware!

Students May Register for NMS Program

CHS students who expect to complete their secondary school requirements and to enter college in 1968 can register now to participate in the 1967-68 National Merit Scholarship Program, principal Paul Sarchet announced today.

The first step for all students who wish to enter the nationwide competition is to take the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMQST), which will be given in the school at 8:30 a. m. February 28, 1967.

Participating students pay a $1 fee, which is remitted by the school to Science Research Associates (SRA), the testing agency.

In addition to competing for the Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1968, students can take the test to obtain information useful in planning their future education and careers.

With his NMQST scores, each participating student will receive a handbook to help him evaluate his scores, compare his performance with that of other high school students across the country, and give him information on choosing a college and financing his education. The handbook and other interpretive materials are furnished as a part of reporting the test results.

The highest - scoring students in each state will be named semifinalists and will be eligible for Merit Scholarship consideration. In addition to the National Merit Scholarships financed by NMSC, more than 350 business corporations, foundations, colleges, professional associations, unions, trusts, other organizations, and individuals offer scholarships through the Merit Program.

About 13,440 students have won Merit Scholarships in the eleven Merit Programs to date. Some 2330 Merit Scholarships were awarded in 1966 with stipends ranging from $100 to $1,500 per year for four college years. The amount of a winner's award is determined by assessing the financial assistance he will need to attend the college of his choice.

The boys' physical education classes are now participating in a motor fitness test. The test, a measure of flexibility and agility, consists of 11 events including the 600-yard run, pull ups, leg rises, and a hand grip measure.

Most Circleville fans were uncertain of the Tiger Hurricane clash last Friday. The Tigers, scoring two last quarter touchdowns came from behind to whip Wilmington, 14-6.

"Let's win tonight!" This is the cry of CHS fans as Hillsboro travels here to end the league season. A CHS victory tonight would clinch the SCOL crown for the Tigers and give them a perfect 5-0 league record. Hillsboro 0-4 in league play, 0-7 overall, should be no match for the Tigers. In other SCOL action tonight Miami Trace took on Washington C.H. and Wilmington plays Greenfield.

Tiger Managers Integral Part Of Football Team

DARRYL BASS

TERRY MARTIN

An integral part of the Circleville High School football team is its staff of managers and trainers.

They are Darryl Bass, trainer-manager; Terry Martin, manager; Mike Merriman, trainer-publicity manager; Bob Wilkinson, manager; Mike Good, trainer.

These boys are always the first at practice and at games. They are always the last to leave.

It is their duty to look after the wants and needs of players and coaches alike.

THE UNSUNG heroes of the CHS football team, their responsibilities start long before game time. They help players suit up, make equipment repairs, tape injured joints and bruises rub stiff, aching muscles to loosen them.

During the game and practice sessions, they must be ready at all times to tend to an injured player or make on the field repairs to damaged gear. They are constantly called upon to run errands for members of the coaching staff. When they are not looking after the wants of the coaches, they are busy "babysitting" the players.

The managers and trainers have to take the good natured abuse of the players and the coaches and they get little of the glory that goes with a winning football team.

Bass and Martin are two former players, who had actually been expected to play for the Tigers this year.

But Bass had an attack of rheumatic fever last winter and the family physician ruled out the grid sport for the good natured senior.

MARTIN was a candidate for the Red and Black squad this fall. But he suffered a back injury that eliminated him from further contact sports.

Mike Merriman, veteran publicist for the Tigers, is responsible for the football brochure.

Browns Should Win in Romp, Guesspert Says

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Green Bay, Dallas and Cleveland figure to romp this week but it will be a tight fit in the other National Football League games. San Diego is regarded as the only sure thing in the American Football League.

Here's how the coming games look to this prognosticator (all games are Sunday unless otherwise noted):

NFL

Green Bay 24, Detroit 14 — The Packers always bring out the best in the Lions, especially that pass rush and Karl Sweetnam showed surprising poise last week. But Green Bay has too much punch and should black out Detroit's offense.

Baltimore 24, Los Angeles 16 — Colts have won last five from Rams and are showing good balance with Tom Matte, Tony Lorick and John Unitas.

Dallas 35, Pittsburgh 10 — Cowboys come home after loss and tie in last two outings, looking for somebody to take it out.

Cleveland 31, Atlanta 17 — A rabbit shot for the Browns whose only trouble will be getting up for Falcons after big win over Dallas.

Minnesota 24, San Francisco 21 — A toughie. They played 20-20 tie in opener but 49ers have won three in a row after shaky start.

Washington 20, Philadelphia 17 — After watching Redskins lose to Giants and then seeing Eagles ramble over same club it's hard to pick Washington but they must have done something right against St. Louis.

Chicago 14, St. Louis 13 (Monday night) — This one is on national (CBS) TV. Bears have buddies five straight in regular season and 22-20 in exhibition. New York has the bye.

AFL

Buffalo 24, New York 21 — A must game for both clubs. Bills have won six of last seven from Jets. Anything can happen. Flip a coin. Could be a tie or a rout.

San Diego 27, Denver 14 — Chargers coming home at last after horrible road trip that ended with defeat in Boston.

Kansas City 28, Houston 20 — Chiefs blow hot or cold and this is the time for hot streak, opening four-game home stand.

Boston 21, Oakland 20 — Both teams surging. Pats have won two and tied one of last three. Miami has the bye.

The 116 wins massed by the 1906 Chicago Cubs still stands as the major league record for most victories in one season.

There are no statistics that tell how much managers and trainers contribute to a winning season.

Southwest Gets Grid Spotlight

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

With Notre Dame and Michigan State having the next best thing to a week off, attention on the college football front might reasonably shift to the Southwest Conference where two critical games will be played Saturday.

The Irish, top team in the country, plays a lackluster Navy squad at Philadelphia and the No. 2 Spartans begin a three-week set against weak Big Ten clubs, plying Northwestern.

But Southwest Conference fans will be treated to an unusual situation where the only two undefeated teams in league competition will be small underdogs in tough games.

Surprising Texas A&M, 3-0 in the conference and 3-2 over-all plays Arkansas, No. 9 in the country, which lost to Baylor three weeks ago. And SMU, 2-0 in the SW Canada 4-1 altogether meets Texas, 2-1 in the league and 3-3 over-all.

Both Texas A&M and SMU, despite their records, are figured to lose by those who decide these things, but if they should win the battle will be joined next week they meet in the Cotton Bowl.

But if the oddsmakers are right, the conference race would be an incredible five-way tangle particularly if highly regarded Baylor, upset by Texas A&M last week, beats TCU as expected.

Rice and Texas Tech clash in the only SWC game that doesn't figure to have a bearing on the conference race.

Third-rated UCLA faces the Air Force Academy, which has beaten the Bruins in three of the last four years, but ought to have its troubles with Gary Beban and Mel Farr.

Alabama, No. 4, is a prohibitive favorite over Mississippi State. Southern California, No. 5, meets Florida State tonight in the Orange Bowl.

Georgia Tech, No. 6, could get a good battle from Duke, which is rebounding from a 33-7 thrashing by North Carolina State last week. Seventh-ranked Florida is a two-touchdown favorite over Auburn.

Missouri, 4-1, could give eighth-ranked Nebraska, unbeaten this season, a rough game. The Cornhuskers are favored by a touchdown. Wyoming, No. 10 with a 6-0 record, meets Colorado State.

The regionally televised games Saturday are Missouri and Nebraska, Ohio State and Minnesota, Florida State at Virginia Tech and Tulsa and Cincinnati.

Top games in the West are Washington Stanford, Oregon State-Washington State and Brigham Young-Arizona. In the Ivy League, Princeton plays Brown, Columbia meets Cornell, Dartmouth plays Yale and Penn is at Harvard.

Other Big Ten games have Iowa meeting Indiana and Michigan at Wisconsin. Also, Tennessee plays Army, Syracuse meets Pitt, Georgia plays North Carolina, Wake Forest meets Clemson, Vanderbilt hosts Tulane and Kentucky is at West Virginia.

Antonio Qualifies For PGA Tour Spot

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Alex Antonio Jr. of Hubbard, Ohio, shot 76-70 Thursday and that sharp finish in the 144-hole marathon qualifier squeezed him into eligibility for the PGA tour.

Antonio totaled 601 when it took 60 to make the list of 2 qualifiers led by Harry Tiscano of New Castle, Pa., with 572.

CHS Harriers Drop Last Meet

The Circleville High School cross country team was edged by Whitehall, 26-29, in the final meet of the season.

Mike Martindill of Circleville finished third with a time of 10:57.

For Circleville Darrell Brown was fifth, Gerald McCain sixth, Mel Smith seventh and Tim Stonerock eighth.

Future of Ohio Prep School All-Star Classics in Doubt

By HAL PARIS

Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's high school athletic commissioner may have sounded the death knell for the state's schoolboy all-star basketball and football games.

Commissioner Paul E. Landis indicated as much Thursday night when he flatly told the board of directors of the Ohio High School Basketball Coaches Association that the Ohio High School Athletic Association (OHSAA) will not sanction the all-star cage classic scheduled for Marion next June.

"And the football game is in jeopardy, too," Landis said.

Landis was reporting to the directors on a recommendation from the basketball coaches made last June that the OHSAA sanction the contest.

"The Board of Control of the Ohio Association has declined to sanction all-star games."

"We do not approve or disapprove of the games. That's been our attitude since 1961," Landis said.

For the last few years, both Ohio's high school all-star basketball and football games have won approval from the NCAA's all-star committee.

Such approval is waived if the contests, the NCAA has given notice in recent years that states must meet its 60-40 per cent formula to gain approval.

That means of the total gate exceeds 60 per cent and profits should be close to the 40 per cent figure.

Dan Baker, basketball coach at Marion Harding High School and director of the all-star game, said profits from last June's game totaled $1,415, but represented only about 20 per cent of the gate.

"We got NCAA sanction because we have shown improvement every year the game has been at Marion. The estimated 20 per cent profits represent an all-time high but we can't be certain the NCAA will approve the 1967 contest," Baker said.

Landis explained that the OHSAA does not have jurisdiction over high school athletes once those boys graduate. Both the all-star basketball and football squads are comprised of graduated seniors only and the games are always played in the summer.

At one time, the exchange between Landis and some of the board members became heated.

"I do not believe in all-star games," Landis said. "What is the purpose of them anyway? A lot of good boys are overlooked. Everyone knows there's a lot of politics going on in the selection of these players. Let the NCAA have the responsibility of sanctioning these games."

Lee Himmeger of Ayresville, who takes over today as president of the basketball coaches, told Landis the purpose of the game is to promote the basketball association.

"You've got a fine organization, why do you want to promote it?" Landis shot back.

Outgoing president John Cabas of Salem intervened.

"We have no quarrel with the high school association. We feel part of our program. We like to show off our top kids in a competitive sort of way and we want to keep this game."

Landis suggested that the coaches make an attempt to cut expenses and that the Chamber of Commerce in Marion could do more to help the game.

This drew objections from Baker, Himmeger and other coaches.

"Our biggest expense" Baker said, "is room and board for both squads for 10 days. We'd like to cut the practice sessions down to five-days but the NCAA requires 10-day practice period."

Asked specifically by Himmeger what the basketball association could do, Landis replied:

"Ask them to reconsider." Cabas indicated that the director would review the situation in hopes of coming up with an answer.

After Landis left the meeting, Hamilton Taft Coach Marv McCollum moved that the directors thank the Marion Chamber of Commerce "for all it has done to help the game." The resolution won unanimous approval.

If the basketball and football all-star games are played without the blessing of either the NCAA or the OHSAA, then the participants are barred from college competition for one year.

Makalena Jr. Shares 1st Round Honolulu Lead

HONOLULU (AP)—"I taught him to play golf right on this course," said Ted Makalena Sr., as he watched husky Ted Jr., play his way around the Waialae links on the Pacific shores to a near-flawless 66.

The score was good for a share of the first-round lead in the $57,000 Hawaiian Open.

Doug Sanders and Miller Barber, making their first Hawaii tour appearance, matched him with six-under-par scores of their own Thursday.

And Dick Lotz, 24-year-old California pro, shot a 67, trailing by one.

Ken Still, 31-year-old Tacoma pro and veteran Al Bessellink also had 67s.

One reason for the low scores was weather that came right out of the travel posters.

Any day, the temperature could take a nose dive. Don't let cold weather catch you unprepared! Bring you car to us . . . let us treat it to a complete winterizing. We check brakes, battery, cooling system . . . lubricate chassis and engine. Check lights, muffler and tailpipe. We offer pick-up and delivery service, too.

Hospital Receives Valuable Isolette

The obstetrical department of any well equipped hospital has modern devices to cope with all situations, even though they may arise infrequently.

Berger Hospital is no exception, thanks to 21 individual hospital gilds. Members of these groups have purchased and presented to the hospital an expensive isolette infant incubator.

These isolettes are now widely used in the treatment of prematurely born babies. In addition to temperature, humidity and other controls, they provide a system for administering purified oxygen to the infants, which greatly increases the survival rate of prematures.

The isolette was officially presented to Charles B. Beard, Berger administrator, by Mrs. Donald E. Hill, president of the Hospital General Guild, and Mrs. Frank R. Moore, second past president of Guild No. 1.

IN ADDITION to the isolette, the General Guild also presented the hospital with two late model Simmons patient beds. This completes a bed replacement program started at Berger several months ago.

According to Beard, all patient beds in the hospital are now modern and up-to-date.

The administrator also noted that two older beds have been made available to the Pickaway County Cancer Society for free use in cancer patient homes. The move was in response to a request by Mrs. Georgia Walker, a Cancer Society official.

Former Sports Editor Russ Needham Is Dead

Needham, about 65, was a lifelong Columbus resident who joined the sports staff of the old Columbus Citizen in 1927, and joined the Dispatch in 1923. Services will be held here Sunday.

Saigon Troops Claim Success

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—South Vietnamese troops today claimed a smashing blow over the Viet Cong in the Mekong Delta. The Communists countered with two attacks on road and river military convoys in the canal-laced delta.

Three battalions of Vietnamese soldiers, backed up by American and Vietnamese air strikes, reported killing 137 Viet Cong in day-long fighting Thursday in rice fields 88 miles southwest of Saigon.

The three-battalion force of some 1,200 men included the crack Vietnamese 42nd and 44th battalions, holders of the U.S. presidential citation.

Farther south the Viet Cong attacked a convoy of rice-carrying barges escorted by seven Vietnamese patrol boats. The guerrilla force opened up on the convoy from both banks of the Co Co River, about 106 miles southwest of Saigon with 57mm recoilless rifle fire, sank one escort vessel and damaged one of the rice barges, a Vietnamese military spokesman reported. The convoy was transporting rice from Ba Lieu to Saigon.

In another attack in the delta today, the Viet Cong attempted to blow up a Vietnamese troop-carrying truck convoy with mines. A government spokesman said the mines damaged one truck of the 14-vehicle convoy as it was moving along a highway 44 miles southwest of Saigon. He reported light casualties to the Vietnamese troops.

Elsewhere, U.S. B52 bombers staged two raids today on Viet Cong troops and camps in South Viet Nam.

Over North Viet Nam, American fighter-bombers flew 95 bombing missions Thursday. One F105 Thunderchief went down during the raids, the 411th U.S. plane reported lost over the North in the war. The pilot is listed as missing.

In Saigon, a Vietnamese guard arrested a woman with a white phosphorus grenade in a basket near the headquarters of Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Viet Nam.

On the political front, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's month-long cabinet crisis appeared resolved with the reported replacement of two dissident ministers.

War Issue in Campaign Blurred

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Viet Nam War, once considered likely to become a key issue in this fall's congressional campaigns, appears to have faded as a subject of partisan contention as election day approaches. An Associated Press survey of campaign issues indicates most candidates in most races support the war and the administration's basic policies.

Differences are largely a matter of degree or relate to such peripheral aspects as what Republicans charge is a "credibility gap" in administration pronouncements about the war.

In a number of cases where the war has played a role in the campaign, the survey showed differences between candidates have become increasingly blurred.

Still, the survey shows, more than three dozen Senate and House candidates are trying to win with so-called "peace platforms" despite the generally poor showing by war opponents in primaries.

Of these candidates, the ones given the best chances for election are those who already hold office. Most challengers face still uphill fights.

Six Democratic House members who have been leaders among congressional advocates of de-escalation in Viet Nam appear likely at this point to be re-elected in heavily Democratic districts: Reps. George E. Brown Jr., Phillip Burton and Don Edwards of California; William E. Ryan of New York; Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin; and John Conyers Jr. of Michigan.

But two House freshmen who have been critical of the war policy face tight fights for re-election. Rep. John G. Dow has soft-pedaled his Viet Nam views against Republican Louis V. Mills and Conservative Frederick P. Roland in New York's normally Republican 27th District. In New Jersey's 9th District, Rep. Henry Helstoski has called for a halt to bombing of North Viet Nam. His Republican opponent, former Rep. Frank C. Osmers, has generally sided with administration policy.

Congress To Consider Election Law Reforms

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Long delayed election reforms may claim high priority in the upcoming 90th Congress if President Johnson signs legislation to finance presidential campaigns with income tax check-offs.

Administration leaders are confident Johnson will approve a foreign investment tax bill which carries a rider that would give both major parties about $30 million each to try to elect their candidates for president in 1968.

But the legislation is so devoid of spending safeguards and the Treasury financing involves such tremendous potential impacts on campaigns for offices other than the presidency that there are certain to be urgent demands for overhauling the federal election laws.

Johnson is expected to seize this opportunity to propose drastic tightening of controls over campaign contributions and spending. His proposals, which included a requirement that Senate and House members report all outside income except that from investments, were which just adjourned.

Johnson's previous recommendation for a $100 income tax deduction for political donations apparently has been washed out by the new bill's provision that each individual could check off $1 of the income taxes he pays to be divided equally by the two major parties.

If everyone did this, about $400 million could be accumulated in the pot over the course of four years to finance the subsequent presidential campaign. However, the maximum of expenditures for both major parties would be $1 for each vote cast in the previous election, less $10 million.

There were about 70 million votes in 1964 and thus the two parties would divide $60 million in 1968. Supporters say this amount would be raised if only one-fifth of the taxpayers made their check mark on their returns.

How this money would be spent remains to be determined by Congress in further legislation. There is no provision to define a legitimate expenditure, no rules laid down to separate presidential from other campaign expenditures by national committees and no provision made to finance these party-governing bodies themselves.

3 Children Drown; Probe Under Way

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — Police are investigating the deaths of three children whose mother apparently hurled herself in front of a truck Thursday.

Police Director Gustav Brugger said the children, who died of drowning, were found on their beds. He added that a foreign substance found in their bodies during autopsies is being tested.

The children were found less than an hour and a half after the mother, Mrs. Raymond White, 24, apparently threw herself in front of a truck near Goethals Bridge, according to police. She is in the mental hygiene unit at Elizabeth General Hospital in a "state of shock and under close observation," a hospital spokesman said.
